Four Big Pages Picture-Packed

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip saw much of Victoria yesterday and Victoria residents had many opportunities to see the royal couple. It all added up to a day the city will long remember. The events of the memorable day are recorded in pictures and stories on pages 6, 7, 8 and 13 of today's Colonist.

NAVY'S SPECTACULAR SHOW CLIMAXES QUEEN'S VISIT

Estimated 100,000 Watched Fireworks

A spectacular fleet illumination and fireworks display which drew an estimated 100,000 spectators—nearly everybody in Greater Victoria—last night climaxed the two-day visit to Vancouver Island of the Queen and Prince Philip. The royal couple leaves by air this morning for the land of the midnight sun.

It seemed the whole city decided to seek the cool waterfront breezes after a scorching day which was highlighted by three major royal appearances. Police estimated it took at least an hour to unsmother the traffic jams.

FROM TERRACE

The Queen and Prince Philip watched from the terrace of the new Government House overlooking the Strait of Juan de Fuca, where a dozen naval ships put on the 30-minute display.

The Queen is due to leave Patricia Bay airport at 10 a.m. today for Whitehorse, Y.T., with a brief stop at Terrace. It will be the first journey by a monarch into the Canadian Arctic, where Sam McGee was over-toasted and Dan McGrew was shot over a lady known as Lou.

BEST SPOTS

Crowds started gathering about 6 p.m. at better vantage points along Victoria's waterfront. By the 10 p.m. starting time for the display, cars were lined up from the breakwater to Oak Bay golf course—a distance of about four miles.

Spectators were treated to a brilliant display by ships of Pacific Command. Packed crowds along the waterfront gasped as the ships were outlined in hundreds of electric lights.

DARK SHAPES

After 15 minutes, at 10:15, the lights were switched out and the ships were dark shapes against the smooth, moonlit waters.

A minute later the scene erupted in a spectacular burst of noise and color as fireworks played over the ships for almost 15 minutes. Rockets soared high into the windless night sky, painting off-shore waters in lurid reds, yellows and greens.

TIMING OFF

Split-second fireworks display went awry when HMCS Assiniboine remained dark for a minute or so when the first rockets shot upward and never regained its timing.

Police said after the show was over that on roads leading to the waterfront area, traffic "was an awful mess."

NO ROOM

Better vantage points such as Clover Point and King George Terrace started to fill as early as 6 p.m. By 7:30 there wasn't a good spot to be had along Dallas Road.

Hundreds of others made their way to Gonzales Hill and Mount Tolmie to watch the display. A number of small boats were launched between 8 and 9 and the owners faced a long wait to get their boats back onto trailers.

STRENUOUS DAY

For the Queen and Prince Philip the display provided a relaxing interlude after the strenuous day's program which included visit to Veteran's Hospital, the PPCLI color ceremony, state luncheon, a visit to Clover Point where 4,000 children were gathered, and a garden party at Government House.

The Queen attended a private dinner party at Government House in the evening, with 24 guests.

GIFTS, MEMORIES

She leaves British Columbia today with a slight case of sunburn, several gifts and memories of a sometimes-heck, sometimes-relaxed visit.

The Queen may appear at the annual Klondike Night in Whitehorse and at Dawson City, next stop, she will likely visit the Nugget dance hall, last of the pleasure palaces where champagnes once sold at $30 a pint, and a cabin of Robert W. Service.

Where To Wave Goodbye

Now is the hour when we must say goodbye.

Last chance to see Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip on the Vancouver Island section of their Canadian tour comes this morning as they travel to Patricia Bay airport.

Here's the schedule:

9 a.m.—Leave Government House for airport via Rockland, Cook, Fort, Douglas, Patricia Bay Highway.

(Cars bearing the tour party will proceed slowly in Victoria City and at intersections of Douglas and Island Highway, MacKenzie, Quadra, and of Patricia Bay Highway and Saanich Road, Elk Lake, Keating Cross Road, Mount Newton Cross Road.)

9:50 a.m.—Arrival at airport.

10:00 a.m.—Royal plane departs.

Humane Slaughter Now Law

OTTAWA (UPI)—The government's controversial humane slaughter bill yesterday received final parliamentary approval when it was passed by the Senate.

The legislation sets out the basis of regulations governing the slaughter of food animals. It would apply to about 80 per cent of Canadian meat processing plants.

A Beloved Sovereign Walks Among Her People

Government House garden party crowd of 4,000 from all walks of life clustered around the Queen yesterday.

day, but occasion was not marred by shoving, pushing and jockeying for position which marked appearance of

Princess Margaret at similar function last year. Morning coats mingled with windbreakers.

This Garden Party Tops in Democracy

It Was a Smash Hit For High and Humble

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were guests of honor yesterday at British Columbia's most democratic Government House garden party in history.

It was a smash hit with a guest list that included office boys and millionaires, new recruits and grizzled generals, the young and the old, the high and the humble.

BEST ON RECORD

It was the pleasantest, sunniest and most relaxed party on the records of a setting famed for such gatherings and the Queen and Prince reacted to the atmosphere and the day with warmth and charm.

Four thousand guests from every walk of life and every corner of the province responded happily to the graciousness of the royal couple who spent an hour and a half at the gathering on the freshly landscaped grounds of the new official residence.

The stay was half an hour longer than originally scheduled—a token of the success of the meeting between the Queen and a representative group of British Columbians.

Unlike last year's party for Princess Margaret, yesterday's gathering was unmarred by shoving or running by society crowds anxious to see the royal visitors at close range.

SOON SEPARATED

The Queen led the way down each terrace of the garden with Prince Philip following at first close behind her. But they soon became separated as they stopped and talked, between them, to literally hundreds of guests.

Fishermen were there from Prince Rupert, loggers from Prince George, air cadets from Kamloops, general store proprietors from the Peace River country, labor leaders from Vancouver.

Guests wore grey toppers and morning coats, blazers and slacks, even zippered windbreakers and checked

What It's Like to Meet Her

If you were one of the lucky few at Government House yesterday, this is the way Canada's Queen looked just before she took your hand, asked where you came from, what you did and what your name was, in a genuine attempt to find out what makes western Canada tick—what its people live for.—(Colonist photos by Jim Ryan.)

Castro May Quit

President Of Cuba Resigns

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—President Manuel Urrutia resigned Friday night after Fidel Castro accused him of "near treason."

Almost immediately the council of ministers named a little-known lawyer, Osvaldo Dorticos, 40, to replace him.

Castro himself, after resigning earlier in the day, said he was not decided whether to stay as prime minister. The rebel leader left the TV studio weeping after delivering a long denunciation of Urrutia.

There were indications the president and his family might go into exile.

Castro told the TV audience that if Urrutia resigned he could go abroad if he wished or take refuge in a foreign embassy.

PRESIDENT URRUTIA

Canada Eyes Russian Fleet

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is watching developments "very closely" in the Bering Sea where a big Russian fishing fleet has been working.

Fisheries Minister MacLean said Friday in the Commons.

The fleet has gone as high as including tugs, transports and supply vessels, he said.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

ABOARD CNR 'CONTINENTAL,' EAST-BOUND—We rolled into Saskatoon early one morning. I was able to pry myself from bed in time to stroll nervously about the platform, gazing up at the signs that identified farm implement companies, and expecting the train to leave at any minute.

And then we were on our way eastward again, gliding past Saskatoon's many trees and vegetable gardens. Saskatoon must be the greenest of the big prairie towns.

My two sons, when they awoke later, were fascinated at the sight of a steam locomotive pulling a train. We saw several steam locomotives along the way, and the boys greeted each one with shouts of excitement.

When they grow up, the steam locomotive will be just a memory, as the sailing ship is now.

At Winnipeg I asked Jack Skull of Canadian National Railways about the remaining steam engines.

"If you come over this way, you'll see one of the 60-60's, the last steam locomotives manufactured in Canada," he said. "She'll be taking out a train to Port Arthur, any minute now. As it happened, I saw this one made in Montreal about 10 years ago, when I was there."

We hurried beneath an underpass just in time to see the steamer puff away at gathering speed, its great toiling pistons throwing out jets of steam, a pepper-and-salt-colored cloud of vapor arising from the smokestack: the most glorious machine that man ever made.

I learned that the railway is using up its steamers, squeezing the last ounce of service out of them by doing the necessary running maintenance but omitting costly major overhauls. In other words, the railway is running the last of the steam engines "into the ground."

This may seem like a cruel end for a faithful machine. However, the CNR is owned by the people of Canada, and it can't really afford to spend the taxpayers' money keeping steam engines as pets, eating up fuel and labor.

I'd like to see a "Society of Railway Watchers" or "Friends of the Railway" gather a fund that would subsidize the major railways to keep two or three steam engines perpetually in service.

Elsewhere along the line we saw steam locomotives that had been withdrawn from service and stored. They had a cold, spectral look about them.

Jack Skull brightened our short time in Winnipeg by pointing out some of the landmarks: The "Golden Boy" on the capitol dome, glistening in the sun; the fragment of the old stone Hudson's Bay Fort which has been preserved, standing in a small leafy park, right in downtown Winnipeg.

Winnipeg is a big, busy town, but I think it has a proper respect for the past. Victoria smashed down every stick of its historic wooden Hudson Bay fort, and a newspaper writer gave thanks publicly that the old eyesore was gone at last.

We said goodbye to Jack Skull and Winnipeg's broad streets, and took up our journey again, past the Red River and scrap metal yards and refineries, eastward toward the woods of Ontario, and toward Montreal.

Garden Party Smash Hit

flannel shirts—and arrived by $10.00 limousines and on foot. It was this kind of a happy, democratic day.

Commodore H. V. W. Groos, commanding officer of HMCS Naden, didn't meet the Queen at the garden party, but his driver did.

PARKED CAR
The driver, L.S. Roy Sterling, after parking the commodore's car in the Government House parking lot, found himself in a group close to the Queen and was startled when she turned and spoke to him.

He had trouble remembering what was said, but "she is very, very beautiful," he reported. (Commodore Groos was presented to the Queen at another function later in the day.)

The Queen was at her most dazzling in a full-skirted frock of palest lime and pink on ivory silk with a hat of pale lime. She wore four strands of pearls, a glittering diamond brooch and diamond bracelet.

She did not appear in the least tired.

Prince Philip was in high spirits, and joked with nearly everyone he talked to. He mainly sought out servicemen of non-commissioned rank.

"How do you like the navy?" he asked PO LaVern Cooper of HMCS St. Laurent. "Fine, sir," said Cooper and introduced his wife, standing beside him.

"Pretty soft for a navy man, having your wife with you," laughed the prince.

To Padre J. A. MacLean, of HMC Dockyard, Philip cracked, "Are you the God-buster?"

"Yes, sir, and a sin-chaser," replied the smiling padre.

When Sgt. Major Eric Ashby of HMCS Naden, who was an RSM, Philip said, "Cushy job, eh?"

The prince has a long chat with CPO Charles Butterworth who cleared a fouled anchor on the destroyer escort Skeena as the royal couple left Vancouver on the Assiniboine.

"Don't forget to plug all the holes in that ship now," Prince Philip advised.

ABOUT MEDAL
Sgt. L. D. Jones, ROASC, of Vancouver whose parents live on Shelbourne Street in Victoria, chatted with the prince, who asked him about his Korea medal.

He asked three Irish Fusilier cadets from Vancouver, George Henderson, Ray Beswick, Jack Senko: "Is this your afternoon off?" and asked two pretty Girl Guides, Joan Loring of Quensel and Eva Arnston of Fort St. John, about school.

The Queen conversed with chief Mungo Martin and his grand-daughter, Mrs. Helen Hunt, who were dressed in full ceremonial attire. She remembered the chief and Mrs. Hunt went to England last year with the famous "Queen's" totem he carved as a B.C. Centennial gift.

NET MOTHER
"I remember all about you. You came to England but I was very sick. You met my mother," the Queen said.

The Queen also talked at length to Mrs. Charles George Beeching of Lincoln Road, Victoria.

Well, it was that kind of a garden party. The Queen and the prince chatted with a true cross-section of British Columbians, and they chatted back.

HIGH RANKS
There were high-ranking officers—Brig. J. W. Bishop, of Vancouver, Col. J. C. Allen, commanding officer of the Patricia's. There were Mr. and Mrs. Bismar, consul from the Philippines, and Japanese consul Muneo Tanabe and Mrs. Tanabe. There were Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer from Chilliwack, and Rev. and Mrs. Walter Mercer, Indian couple from Prince Rupert.

The last person Prince Philip talked to was Able Seaman Ken Garland of Naden.

"I see you are a bandsman," said the prince. "Which band?"

"The one behind you, sir," said AB Garland, pointing to the Naden band.

Man Slugs Bear Then Wins Race

MISSION, B.C.—Henry Kroonen traded blows with a snarling, 400-pound black bear near here and then won the race of his life.

Kroonen said he went to investigate when he heard his dog whining in the bush near his Fraser Valley home.

He was confronted with a black bear moving toward him. He struck the bear on the shoulder with his axe and the bear struck him on the chest. Kroonen ran behind a stump and hit the bear again. The bear ripped Kroonen's left forearm.

Kroonen ran for home. "I fell several times and each time the bear almost got me. But finally I beat him to my house."

TORONTO—Canadian ballerina Celia Franca says the National Ballet planned to offer scholarships for studies at the new ballet school which is scheduled to open here this fall, and added that a number of service clubs have shown interest in providing local scholarships.

SHANNON, Ireland—"Flying grandfather" Max Conrad, 56, says he has "retired" from flying single-engine planes over the North Atlantic.

LONDON—Princess Margaret, who has a sore throat, remained in her room at Clarence House. It was not serious.

OTTAWA—The cabinet has committed to life imprisonment the death sentence against John Wannop, 27, of Vancouver for the judo-chop murder of Edward Beresford.

WALSALL, England—Mrs. Margaret Wood, 100 years old, has been drinking a pint of beer a day on doctor's advice for 50 years. "The doctor said I might rust away but I would never die," she said.

LONDON—David Clover was fined 10 shillings on a charge of aiding and abetting the carrying of a dangerous load in a two-seater sports car.—Clover and eight others.

RALEIGH, N.C.—Ralph Lee Betts, 36, white father of four children, was sentenced Thursday to life imprisonment for the rape of an 11-year-old Negro girl.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Tom Anthony McGee, 20-year-old Negro busboy, was fined $50 on charges of winking at a 19-year-old white waitress and touching her.

WASHINGTON—Actor Jimmy Stewart, the greying all-American boy of the movies, is getting his brigadier-general's star in the air force reserve.

Couple Burned In Plane Crash

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP)—A Portland couple were critically burned Friday in the crash during a landing, of their light airplane at an airport on Blakely Island, about 20 miles southwest of here in the San Juans.

Four other persons in the plane, including an infant, escaped with minor injuries, the U.S. Coast Guard said. Their names were not available.

W. K. Dallas and his wife, Hazel, were brought to hospital in Bellingham after being flown from the island by a coast guard helicopter.

Sommers To Enter Penitentiary
VANCOUVER (CP)—Legal formalities to permit the transfer of former lands and forests minister Robert E. Sommers from Oakalla prison farm to the British Columbia Penitentiary were completed here Friday.

H. Wilson Gray, 46, convicted with Sommers on bribery-conspiracy charges, will also be transferred.

Sommers was originally sentenced to five consecutive one-year terms, and Gray to five consecutive one-year terms and four concurrent one-year terms.

The B.C. Court of Appeal changed the sentences to one of five years for conspiracy for each man with five one-year terms for Sommers and eight one-year terms for Gray, to be served concurrently.

It meant both men would serve the term in penitentiary instead of in a provincial institution.

Sommers is expected to be discharged from hospital within a few days. He was admitted several weeks ago for treatment of a minor heart ailment.

'Yard of Ale' 13.5 Seconds Takes Prize

LONDON (UPI) — Kevin Murphy, 23, downed two pints of beer in 13.5 seconds in a Sobo bar to win the London Hospital doctors' "yard of ale" contest.

The "world's record" was said to be 18 seconds. A "yard" of ale is one quart.

Second place was captured by a British sailor who said he was defeated only because he had spent "too much time rehearsing."

An unidentified American sailor who took third place said the taste of warm British beer prevented him from doing his best.

'Suburb' Moves to New Location

Seven houses rolled along the highway through Jacksonville Beach, Fla., in what was thought to be the largest house-moving operation at one time in that state's history. Homes were moved together since hundreds of light and telephone wires had to be cut to allow them to pass through a five-mile journey to their new location.

Might Deplete Salmon, Says Howard

'Curb Foreign Fleets'

Toronto Beaches Polluted, Closed

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto suburbs of Mimico, Long Branch and New Toronto closed their beaches Friday to swimmers because of pollution in Lake Ontario and rivers running into it. Western Ontario beaches are already barred.

OTTAWA (UPI)—Frank Howard (CCF, Skeena) has warned of the danger of allowing Russian, Chinese and other fishing fleets to operate on the high seas off the British Columbia coast.

Howard said the government should start negotiations with the countries concerned to ensure that these fishing grounds, where young salmon begin to mature, are not depleted. The area lies outside present international agreements.

If the foreign fishing boats are allowed to fish in the area, extending to the Bering Sea, Howard added, it might have "a very detrimental effect on the development of the fishery" on the West Coast.

Howard said he hoped that discussions along the lines of those with the United States and Japan under the North Pacific Fisheries Commission will be followed by other countries.

Fisheries Minister Angus Maclean said that "a considerable fleet as high as 80 vessels" was operating in the Bering Sea area. He added that reports indicated the Russian trawlers were not after either salmon or halibut but were confining their fishing to founders, Pacific cod and pollock.

They'd Have Control, Too

U.S. Offers A-Weapons

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States had made clear it is ready to stockpile atomic weapons in Canada if Canada so desires, but full control and custody of those weapons must rest with the U.S.

This was spelled out by Gen. Herbert Loper, an assistant to Defence Secretary Neil McElroy, in testimony before the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

NUCLEAR FACTS

The committee last week gave its approval to new U.S. nuclear pacts with Canada and six other North Atlantic powers.

Unless vetoed by a joint resolution of the House of Representatives and Senate, the agreement with Canada will go into effect next Friday.

Canada is not considered capable of making atomic bombs and the agreements will not give her information on weapon-making, "inasmuch as Canada is not considered to have the capability of meeting the qualifications of the law to permit such transfer," Gen. Loper told the committee.

Extra Ferry On Fridays

An additional Friday only, round-trip service between Vancouver and Nanaimo was announced yesterday by the CPR.

The extra sailing, to be handled by either the Princess Patricia or Princess Marguerite, will leave Nanaimo at 9:30 p.m. arriving in Vancouver at 11:45 p.m. The boat will then leave Vancouver at midnight, arriving back in Nanaimo at 2:15 a.m.

Ottawa Works Out Plans To Carry On in Case of War

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker last night announced the government has worked out emergency measures to assure the maintenance of government and security in Canada in the event of a nuclear war. Mr. Diefenbaker told the House of Commons that the plans would keep Canada "as a going concern" in the initial stages of nuclear war. He said the emergency measures would be integrated with Canada's civil defence setup. One of the major plans, Mr. Diefenbaker said, was the establishment of a war supplies agency under the direction of the defence department. He said the agency would have control over all aspects of the provision of civilian and military supplies during the early part of a war. He said the plans would provide a "central core of government."

Lively U.K. Teeners

'There's a Moose About the Hoose'

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI)—I caught up with the state of teen-age music in England Thursday night, courtesy of ABC-TV and a filmed-in-London half-hour called Oh Boy! (Some critics suggest it be called Help!)

This show is aimed squarely at lively teen-agers and I won't knock it because I'm one old fogey who has seen too many TV shows aimed squarely at lively grownups.

LA-HUH-HUH!

The British cats play electric guitars, saxophones, drums, wiggle their hips and snap their fingers just as our greatest teen-age rock'n'rollers do. They even say "lu-huh-huh" for "love" and sing puppy-lu-huh-huh songs with lyrics like, "Welluh, welluh, welluh, I'm a-waitin' for the belluh, belluh, belluh."

They ask that musical teen-age question: "Who are they to say we're much too young?" For a novelty effect, someone uttered the rollicking refrain: "Hoot mon! There's a loose moose about the hoose."

GIRLS, GIRLS, GIRLS

The British have a few things that Dick Clark might have noticed, too. The singers aren't pre-recorded. The boys don't sport over-fluffed hairdos and their clothing seemed of the world. But the strongest—the only—innovation was in the use of girls, girls, girls.

In America, the girls are all in the audience, squealing and shrieking. In England, they wear short shorts and tight sweaters and perform on stage all through the show. Maybe that's why the show's called Oh Boy!

Crowd Panics in Rain

47 Die in Stampede

FUSAN, South Korea (AP)—A sudden downpour caused a stampede at an outdoor show here last night. Police said 47 persons perished in the crush. At least 125 others were reported injured.

Goodbye and Good Luck!

THE most memorable Royal visit comes to its close today for Vancouver Island when Her Majesty and Prince Philip leave from Patricia Bay airport in the forenoon. It will leave to linger on vividly etched impressions of our gracious young Sovereign and her Royal consort; whose good-natured acceptance of a long and exhausting schedule has endeared them to everyone. In the poetic title of the Indians, Her Majesty is not only "respected by all," but beloved everywhere she goes. The present tour has made the Throne scintillating and humanly real to Canadians as never before.

Victoria, a garrison city for most of its life, excelled itself. From the splendid Color ceremony which symbolically merged battle honors won in two world conflicts, the faultless fly-past in "E" formation by the air force and on to the brilliant naval display after sundown, garrison forces were everywhere at their smartest and best. The closing picture of the illuminated fleet off Dallas road before the backdrop of the Olympic Mountains was itself a reminder of Victoria's distinctive setting and enduring charm. "Royal" weather in smiling summer skies has attended the whole stay.

Brief as it has been, Her Majesty's stay at Government House in its new environment will be an unforgettable one. Transcending the forms of state, our citizens have seen the Queen and Prince Philip and taken them warmly to their hearts. The youngest child and the oldest pioneer will carry with them now the charming image of the Queen of Canada and her consort; while thousands will recall the flashing smiles and the open-handed waving.

As Head of the Commonwealth, Her Majesty has a broad realm to traverse; so it is not likely Victoria will have such a rich opportunity again for some time to come. The moment to say goodbye unfortunately comes all too soon. In the traditional signal of naval ships at parting it is well expressed: "Goodbye and Good Luck". May God Bless Her Majesty!

The Price of Drug Addiction

MOST people who have never been tempted themselves are inclined to assume a detached attitude towards drug addiction as though it were something to be deplored like leprosy, but did not and never could affect their own lives. It is a myopic view of what has become one of Canada's worst social problems, touching if not the lives certainly the pocketbooks of everyone.

In a recent raid in Montreal the RCMP seized heroin on which they placed a value of $8,000,000 to the illicit drug market. The quantity confiscated was a mere 13 pounds, about the weight of a housewife's bag of groceries. When such a small quantity is officially stated to be "worth" $8,000,000 to the pitiful victims of the drug habit it becomes plain that few of them can afford to pay the price legitimately.

This graphic example of the filthy gains to be made out of trafficking in human degradation and misery serves to illustrate the other side of addiction—the criminal side. Justice Minister Fulton during a discussion of the problem in Parliament some time ago stated on the authority of survey statistics that almost all Canada's drug addicts have turned to crime for the means of satisfying their craving—a consequence easy to understand when that illicit market value of 13 pounds of heroin is placed at $8,000,000.

This aspect of the horrible trade, besides being one of the saddest, also brings it home to the public. Victims of the drug habit who sooner or later have to turn to theft, burglary and car prowling to satisfy their needs fill the jails at the expense of the taxpayers, raise the rates of insurance, take up the time of the courts and add heavily to the work of the federal and local police forces, thereby multiplying the cost of law enforcement.

To a degree which few can appreciate, drug addiction is reflected in the incidence of crime. Treating and if possible rehabilitating the victims is a problem for the humanists and sociologists, but in its larger aspects stamping out this dreadful disease is a problem for the nation as a whole; and up to now very little of real worth has been done about it.

Leave Them There

AFTER visiting the Mount View Home for Aged Men the mayor says he hasn't the heart to turn them out. That does His Worship credit, as it also does Alderman Edgewood who prompted the visit and who is anxious that the home be kept clean. Perhaps the council should revise its decision. It is a shattering thing to old people to start afresh in new surroundings, even if it costs a few extra dollars to leave them happy.

Happiness is surely the primary factor. With all the good intent in the world others may not know what is best for these elderly men. The latter are the judge of their own content, and if as reported they are reluctant to be moved the council would be wise to think twice before upsetting their lives. It is perhaps too easy to assume an attitude that prescribes for others against their will.

It is not at all certain that if separated and put into private homes they would be healthier, more active and more independent. The opposite might very well be the case. Patients and inmates of such premises of necessity must conform. They lose a certain amount of freedom. They may feel isolated, more so than at present where they have the "buddy" association of their fellows.

It is a serious thing anyway to parcel them out as if they were a commodity the city wanted to be rid of. They deserve better than that. It is stated that finance is a secondary matter and that the Mount View Home is not expensive to maintain. That seems all the more reason why it should remain in existence.

A few dollars well spent would brighten up the institution. The decor could be freshened in lighter tones, for instance. If the home at present seems too institutional that could easily be corrected. Routine and atmosphere could be reoriented if anything is amiss. Not much can be wrong when the inmates want definitely to stay where they are, however. Their wishes should receive primary consideration.

Interpreting the News

Conservatives Are Ready

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—With every passing day, confidence increases in government circles that the Conservative party will win its third straight general election.

This may be euphoria induced by the golden summer—after all, polling day hasn't been announced—but there is no mistaking the buoyancy in government ranks as politicians await the starting signal.

The current belief is that voting day will be Oct. 15. After that, Conservatives say, it will just be matter of how many extra seats they will gain. In the 630-seat Commons, they now have 341 members, compared with 278 for the chief opposition party, Labor.

The Tory confidence reflects a startling change in Britain's political climate. Little more than a year ago, Labor headed the opinion polls and business was beginning to worry that Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell would be the country's next prime minister.

Now the parties are running neck and neck, and some feel the Conservatives are beginning to draw ahead. What caused the change?

The influences may be subtle. They include the sudden emergency of Prime Minister Macmillan as an attractive political personality, after a period in which he was described as the least-liked prime minister since Neville Chamberlain; the prominent part taken by Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd in international peace-making efforts; and the general sense of economic well-being in the country.

The average Briton, recovering from the psychological shock of Suez, is beginning to take a more optimistic view of things. One pointer is the slowing down of British immigration to Canada, compared with the panic days of 1956-57 when Canadian immigration offices in London dealt with daily queues.

Something seems to have happened in the last 15 months to appease an important section of British society, perhaps best identified as the old middle class.

Washington Angle

Monstrous Folly

By MARQUIS CHILDS

SECRETARY of Agriculture Benson is an unshakable institution in the Eisenhower cabinet. His conviction of the inequity of rigid price supports is as solid and unyielding as on the day he took office. A $9,000,000 surplus of farm products, about three-fourths of it accumulated during his tenure, leaves him unperturbed. This results not from a Benson program, he says, but from the system forced on him by a politically-minded Congress.

The secretary predicts that the present system must fall of its own monstrous folly. What will bring it down is the Mt. Everest of wheat that promises to grow even vaster in the next twelve months. The surplus of wheat stored today under loan or government inventory is 1,200,000,000 bushels valued at more than $3,000,000,000.

It is stored in boats on the Hudson River and boats on Puget Sound. It fills great warehouses from one side of the nation to the other and the new crop, for lack of space, spills out on the ground along railway sidings and farmers' storage bins.

Whether the dam will break during the 18 months he still has to serve, Secretary Benson does not venture to say. But he is confident that when it does the politics of the price support system will be swept away. With at least a comparatively free market the farmer will again hold up his head in sturdy pride and, what is more important, he can begin to find new markets for his produce.

Benson is prepared to make some concessions. He will not yield to the expected pressure to put hogs under price supports, for that would put the government into hog farming. But he will be ready to buy several hundred million dollars worth of products that can be used, as in the past, in the school lunch program.

Lower meat prices—and the trend of beef is down, too—can be a boon for the consumer. Food is figured at 29 per cent of the total family budget in computing the consumer price index. While most other prices are currently rising, a lower food bill could keep the index steady through most of 1960. For the average citizen, who thinks in terms of his grocery bill, the administration's cries of warning about inflation would seem a little empty.

Almost no one at any level of government has faced up to the technological revolution in agriculture—a revolution in machines, in seeds, in fertilizers, in techniques. It has brought the onrushing flood of abundance and with it the paradox of well-advertized poverty in the midst of embarrassing plenty. The question arises so often why with so much hunger in the underdeveloped and over-populated countries America's wasting surpluses cannot be used.

Secretary Benson's replies are the familiar ones—spoiling the markets of other nations, upsetting the balance of trade.

But the avalanche will not wait on such timid responses. And when the break comes there is no assurance that the law of supply and demand will be conveniently restored as Benson assumes in his conviction of past virtue and present evil. After years of costly tinkering with agriculture the past cannot be so readily restored.

Reports From Ottawa

THE CRISES which have beset the CBC in the last sixth months would, in private industry, make the position of the top brass very shaky. And so there is growing speculation in Ottawa as to whom the government might pick to replace J. Alphonse Ouimet as CBC president.

Three names are being mentioned frequently.

There is Stewart Bates, the brilliant and dynamic president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

There is James S. Duncan, the hard-headed captain of industry who heads the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

There is James Stewart, former Bank of Commerce president, now chairman of the board, and erstwhile vice-chairman of the Fowler Royal Commission on Broadcasting.

This speculation assumes that Ouimet's days are numbered, and that the numbers don't run very high.

Item: Ouimet has been on sick leave most of the time since his appointment last Nov. 11. In February he had a serious heart attack, in June an operation for gall bladder.

Item: His personal prestige suffered a severe blow during the strike of CBC producers in Montreal last winter, especially as his brother Andre, then a high officer of the CBC in Montreal but now no longer with the CBC, was one of the main targets of the strikers' ire.

Item: Changes Ouimet made have been criticized as creating an unwieldy and inefficient organization.

These changes were to replace a system whereby the chain of operational decision led upward to the general manager, to a system of geographical control, with regional CBC directors bearing greatly increased responsibility.

These regional directors reported to vice-president E. G. Bushnell. At the same time Ouimet set up what might be called a cabinet of six controllers with over-all authority, but with no direct responsibility for operational decisions.

The reorganization is still incomplete, having been interrupted by Ouimet's illness.

The anonymous "head rolling" threat reported to the Commons committee by CBC Ontario director H. G. Walker included Ouimet as one of its targets, but aside from that there has been no indication of any intention to fire him. Yet the speculation grows because of the way the cards are stacked against him.

About all in his favor is sympathy for a man hit by personal adversity and who has not had a fair chance to prove his abilities, and the likelihood that the firing of a French-Canadian from a top government job would antagonize votes in Quebec.

But if the government deems that the vicissitudes of the CBC demand Ouimet's head, the mantle of Davy Dutton could well fall to Bates, Duncan or Stewart.

Duncan's experience is industrial, as former head of Massey-Harris. Stewart's banking background has been overlaid by thorough knowledge of broadcasting gained in the royal commission study.

Bates has been successively an economics professor, a government economist, deputy minister of fisheries, a recognized world authority on fisheries, and head of the national housing program in its period of greatest expansion. Last year he startled and pleased Parliament by reporting a substantial reduction in CMHC staff despite a rising work output.

Bates is a man of many outstanding qualities, and not the least is his possession of the kind of personality that inspires subordinates and fosters esprit de corps. And if there's something that the sorely buffeted CBC needs more than all else, it is a resurgence of this tenuous quality that is the collective soul of any company of men striving for a common goal.

The Packack

Brewis and Scruncheons

By GREGORY CLARK

HERE I am nearly seventy years old and I have just found out about scruncheons.

This is what comes of living on the mainland. Canada now consists of two islands with a mainland in between them. I have frequently visited Vancouver Island and learned many things such as the feel of a steelhead trout on a four-ounce flyrod. But for some reason that I find it hard to account for now, I have only been on Newfoundland, the eastern isle, and the oldest boundary of the new world, during the wars, and then only in passing.

I have just come back from a real visit, on which I learned the feel of an Atlantic salmon on a four-ounce flyrod, and also the taste of scruncheons.

Scruncheons have no counterpart in mainland cooking, as far as my experience goes. We have crackling on pork. But the difference between crackling and scruncheons is the difference between the sound of a car horn and the music of a violin.

Okay, okay, I'll come to them in a minute. To make a dish that is called "fish and brewis with scruncheons," you proceed as follows. You get your fish (and only cod is dignified by the name of "fish" in Newfoundland, all other finny creatures having to declare themselves by their Christian names, like salmon, trout, rosefish, herring) and soak it overnight to liberate the salt. Then you get your hard tack or hard bread or sea biscuit, break it up and soak it all night too.

Then in the morning, you cut your salt fat pork into squares the size of honest dice and render them gently until they are small, square and crisp, about the size of peas. And while they are rendering, you boil the soaked biscuit, which is brewis, and boil or fry your fish. And if you hit it right, you lay the fish on the left hand side of the big plate, the brewis on the other, and pour the scruncheons, hot and sharp from the pan, over all.

And when you have eaten, you will find yourself pursuing the last little lone scruncheon all over the empty plate.

Never So Good

Tories on The Crest

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

IF anyone is interested in a lesson in overcoming frustration and the encouragement of enterprise, the last British budget is a case in point. The chancellor of the exchequer in April returned to the British taxpayer the equivalent of some $700,000,000 in the form of taxation he had decided he could do without. The main cut was in income tax, with minor concessions in indirect taxation.

There were also increased benefits for pensioners and in September there will be increases in grants for national assistance—payments made to indigent persons. As teachers and civil servants have had increased pay and judges increased pensions, it may be fairly said that the budget provided benefits to every section of the community.

What is the result after three months of operation?

Industrial investment has increased substantially, savings have gone up, employment has increased, production is greater, export business has increased and planned developments show an ever-increasing confidence in the economic health of the country. Best of all, perhaps, is the fact that sterling has again become a popular currency. Bluntly the nation has had a lift and feels very much better for it.

The government was inspired to some extent, undoubtedly, by the imminence of the general election. It was, naturally, a popular budget because the British taxpayer has become used to governments which squeezed out the last drop in taxation. It was marvellous to have a chancellor who believed that there were people who could spend money more efficiently than the government. The result has been better than expected.

It has, of course, annoyed the socialists because it has been a manifest justification of free enterprise. It has annoyed them so much that there has been an open breach in their ranks, with Mr. Frank Cousins heading the diehard Labor traditionalists who believe in the nationalization of industry, currency controls and crippling taxation on the grounds that the government knows best how to spend your money. What is possibly more embarrassing than Mr. Cousins is the fabulous popularity of unit trusts on the stock market.

Since the budget more than a dozen new trusts have been formed. They buy a portfolio spread over a wide variety of shares and government securities and sell unit certificates in the portfolio allowing the little man to invest as little as $20 in acquiring an interest in the great industries of the country. Tens of thousands of people who have never owned a stock or share in Britain are putting savings into the unit trusts, and we are well away to creating a nation of little capitalists.

With amazing indifference to facts and trends the diehard socialists are using this very moment to argue the justification of a capital gains tax. Pretending to attack the big business tycoon and take-over enthusiasts, these doctrinaire socialists will also hit the little man who hopes, given continuing prosperity, to find his $20 worth $50 in six or seven years' time. If perchance these diehards got into office they would tax that $30 gain at surtax rates. The nationalizers would take over many of the companies represented in his portfolio, and they would also prevent him buying houses for no down payment and weekly payments less than rental introduced by the Conservatives—also designed to help create a nation of little property owners.

Allied to all this is the simple fact that the socialists believe that the electors will overlook the fact that the nationalized industries created by the Labor government between 1945 and 1951 have cost either taxpayers—or consumers—a fabulous amount of money. The aggregate losses each year are something like $500,000,000 including coal, railways and airways. Gas and electricity pay because their absolute monopoly enables them to charge high rates to consumers—like the post office.

If the general election is held in October—now generally expected—the Conservatives will have a record of increased employment, a buoyant economy, reduced taxation and tens of thousands of people—some put it at more than a million—who have invested in private industry through unit investment trusts, in houses through simple plans of home-ownership for normal rental payments, and in normal government savings. They have bluntly "never had it so good"—and getting better all the time. Added to that is the strike in the printing industry—and strikes are never popular with electors.

The sharp divergence of Labor opinion which will have to be debated at the Labor Party conference on the eve of the election, may well turn a heavy Labor defeat into a rout. The original high hopes that the Liberal Party—nearly 50 years in the political wilderness—would gain enough strength to offer moderately radical alternatives has not been borne out.

Compassionate Queen Cheers Bedridden Veteran

Womanly compassion shows in face of Queen Elizabeth as she chats with Imperial veteran John Twentyman of Ladysmith at Veterans' Hospital yesterday. Queen asked where he lived, what unit he served with, and was told the 2nd Battalion, Border Regiment. She had a kind word for dozens of ailing veterans.

Old Soldiers Didn't 'Fade Away' They Took New Life from Queen

By ERITH M. SMITH

There was little sign of "fading away" among the old soldiers—and sailors—at Veterans' Hospital yesterday. Rather, they seemed to gain new life from the warm smiles of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

It was a wonderful day for the patients. The Royal couple paused briefly many times, to shake a veteran's hand, ask how he did, to check with staff members on hospital conditions; or in the case of the Prince, just to raise a laugh. Lining the walk by the east entrance were 15 bed-patients, who kept shading towels over their heads in the sunshine until just before the Royal couple came out from the inner lounge.

Capt. Vincent Knox, veteran of two wars, was one of the first of these the Queen spoke to.

As with all the others, she had a bright smile for him, and walking up to his bedside she shook his hand and asked:

"Where are you from?" "Cowichan River, Your Majesty," he replied.

Looking at his row of medals, the Queen asked "With what unit did you serve?"

"The 18th Royal Irish in the first war," he said, "and with the Canadian Scottish in the last one. When I got overseas they said I was too old for active service, so I went to the Imperials as a staff officer.

Capt. Knox was proud of the fact that in the first war he was, for a couple of days, the youngest officer in the Canadian Army. He was commissioned when only 17.

John Twentyman of Ladysmith was another first war veteran with whom the Queen chatted. In response to her questions he told her he'd served with the 2nd Battalion, Border Regiment, and that he'd been caretaker in the federal building at Ladysmith for 41 years.

Navy veteran M. Finbow has memories of a chat with Prince Philip—who, spotting his medals, wanted to know with whom he'd served in the South African war.

"With Capt. Scott of HMS Powerful, Royal Navy, sir," the veteran replied. "I was his messenger, just 16 years old, and had been in the navy a year."

He calls Victoria home now. Ernest Robert Cobb from Penticton, who'll be 84 next May, said he told the Royal visitors he remembered seeing them on their last visit to British Columbia together, when he saw them at Shaughnessy Military Hospital in Vancouver.

Pavilion resident Frank Murphy said he'd told the Queen of seeing her many times when she was a child. His own home was hard by Glamis Castle, the Queen Mother's home, and during his years there the veteran saw the whole Royal Family many times.

Mr. Murphy served in the first war on GHQ staff in mechanical transport.

John B. Mitchell, 76, another pavilion resident, said he congratulated the royal couple on their memories.

He'd no need to tell them he'd served in three wars, starting as a lad in the South African strife. In the last war, he told the royal visitors, he served with the Forestry Corps.

Prince Philip raised several chuckles among the veterans and others close enough to hear.

At one stage, outside near a line of seated veterans, he spoke to Nurse Margaret Egerton, noting from her medals that she'd been in the war.

"Do you have any trouble with this lot?" he asked, waving his arm along the row of old soldiers.

"Oh no," she said. "I keep a pretty firm hand on things." Turning to the veterans, Prince Philip asked them: "Do you have any trouble with her?"

His answer was a roar of laughter.

When the visitors had left, Ruth Cowper, director of nursing services, relaxed a bit and agreed that everything had gone extremely well.

Made It in Time —With One Hitch

Somehow, Greater Victoria municipal dignitaries made it over to their Beacon Hill soccer field seats for the military ceremonies and got there before the Queen.

They went by two buses, taking off on the heels of the royal party. They weren't quite sure afterward, some of them, exactly what happened, but they surmised Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip must have been taken a little extra distance to let them arrive first.

Only trouble was, when they got there, their seats were gone.

"There were people standing there," one of the reeves said. "But we found places to sit in the shade."

Sportsman's Delight Shows at Unusual Gift

Grinning delightedly, Prince Philip turned to Queen Elizabeth to show her a male falcon presented to him by Franke Beebe of Victoria on behalf of the British Columbia government at Government House yesterday. The two birds—a cast of falcons—were presented by the provincial government in a surprise event.

Why Falcons Were Kept Quiet

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Fears that the SPCA would protest against the presentation of two hunting falcons to Prince Philip yesterday by the provincial government led to extreme secrecy surrounding the event.

This was the explanation advanced separately yesterday by two officials.

The secrecy was intense. Two reporters and four photographers were chosen to represent the world's press at the presentation.

They were not told what was to happen until minutes before the presentation, held under the granite archway over the main entrance to Government House.

There were rumors before the announcement that there was going to be a visit to naval establishments, a visit to Butchart Gardens, dinner at Woodwyn Farm which was visited by Princess Margaret last year, or an announcement regarding Canada's new Governor-General.

"This is really for the birds," one photographer quipped when the secret was finally out.

The presentation was made by Frank L. Beebe of Victoria, George Galicz of North Surrey and David Hancock of Victoria, officers of the B.C. Falconry Association.

Presentation of falcons to royalty is a tradition. Prince Philip is an honorary member of the British Falconers' Club and has attended falcon hunts in England.

As the royal couple left the garden party in the grounds of Government House and approached the entrance, Queen Elizabeth halted a few paces away from the three falconers.

Prince Philip took the limelight for the first time during the tour of Vancouver Island and chatted easily with Mr. Beebe, Mr. Galicz and Mr. Hancock.

"How about Customs?" he asked Mr. Beebe, who replied there was no trouble about sending the birds to England. They will be flown over in a few days.

Prince Philip took a heavy glove offered by Mr. Hancock and took the falcon from Mr. Beebe's hand after some trouble. As he took it, he half turned to the Queen and smiled.

Her Majesty smiled back and asked Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross: "What are they?"

"They are falcons, Your Majesty," he replied.

"Yes, I know, but what kind?" the Queen asked. Mr. Ross had to admit he was baffled. It was later determined they were peregrine falcons.

No Fatigue Here

Long, hot day Thursday left no sign of fatigue on face of Queen Elizabeth yesterday morning, when, again in warm sunshine, she visited Veterans' Hospital and attended civic and military ceremonies. Here Her Majesty is escorted by Mayor Percy Scurrell at Greater Victoria civic welcome.

Don't Fence Me In

A spectator at yesterday's royal color presentation ceremony wondered how one woman had managed to keep what seemed like a private circle of vantage space in an area where everyone else was jammed shoulder to shoulder.

He soon found out. In rapid succession he saw the woman: thoroughly spank a child who got too close, repeatedly punch one man and then stab another with a seven-inch hatpin.

I Saw Her Five Times ... Beautiful

SHEILA HINCKS behind the prince

THE GARDEN PARTY

By SHEILA HINCKS

I saw the Queen five times. She was beautiful and her dress was light lime colored with tiny pink roses, but I didn't see the prince at all.

Some people didn't see the Queen at all, I guess.

She was also wearing a lime colored hat, white pumps, long white gloves and she was carrying a beige umbrella.

There were long lines of people trying to get a glimpse of Her Majesty and she talked to a great many of them. It would have been wonderful if she could have talked to everybody, but there were just too many.

I never saw Prince Philip, only his back. He was walking around by himself and I was walking around behind him. He talked to some of the Guides. He asked one of them how she was going to get home, but I didn't hear any more about it.

There were 30 Guides altogether. Some were from Vancouver, one or two from Prince George, one from the Kootenays, one from Squamish and I believe the farthest one was from Fernie. I thoroughly enjoyed myself and I hope that everybody who went to the garden party enjoyed themselves as much.

Pedlar's Plane Paces Tour

Leftover Souvenirs Make Heady Profit

A royal tour follower, who uses his own airplane to keep up with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip so he can turn a 100 per cent profit on souvenirs, said yesterday, "Victorians are nice people, but nobody will ever accuse them of spending money with reckless abandon."

"Speed" Newman, flying out of Fresno, Calif., was in fine form at Clover Point yesterday when he told customers, "These royal clasps are all diamonds and pearls set in real gold, but don't get them appraised until I get out of town."

"You can say I'm breakin' even and we're having a nice holiday," the souvenir vendor told reporters.

"Didn't I see you in Revelstoke?" one reporter asked. "Revelstoke," said Speed, contemplatively, "Don't mention Revelstoke in my presence, please."

"In Revelstoke they spend money like molasses rolls up hill in the winter, maybe worse."

"But Calgary, Oh, Calgary! Calgary is a great town. In Calgary they spend their dough like it was going out of style."

Just then a little boy came up and paid $1.50 for three flags.

"Gotta attend to business," said Speed.

"You know how much profit I made on that sale?"

"No," said a reporter.

"Just a dollar-fifty, that's all. I got them from a guy in Vancouver who hadn't sold his stuff before the Queen left."

"He said, 'Take 'em away. You can have 'em.' The rest of the stuff I got when the King was here and all I can say is that Canada has sure grown."

Incredible Mass of 20,000 Sees Memorable Color Rite

Sun-Baked, Precise, Splendid

By EILEEN LEAROLD

We were all the soldiers of the Queen yesterday.

All of us in that incredible mass of 20,000 stood to attention in the sun-baked amphitheatre called Beacon Hill Park each time she rose. Three times we sang "God Save the Queen."

The troops, those magnificent soldiers of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, stood altogether 90 minutes to attention, six minutes to ease.

No one will forget the sight they made, marching on the square before Her Majesty's arrival, the color escort guard first, then five more guards, each of 54 men and three officers.

EARTH SHOOK

The earth literally shook each time 360 pairs of feet came to the halt.

The Queen's arrival caused a roar from the crowd, as immediately on her arrival, she stepped into a grey Land Rover and reviewed her guards, sun-bleached into thin golden lines.

Such pageantry may never be seen in Victoria again. This is the first time in British Columbia at least that a reigning monarch has presented colors.

REGAL IN BLUE

Elizabeth II was regal in vivid royal blue and pink or-gandy hat, when she gave the color to the PPCLI and the guidon to the King's Own Calgary Regiment.

Three times yesterday the new colors were dipped to the young monarch. Those who saw the presentation may never again see the colors dipped, for they are dipped only to the sovereign.

BLADE-STRAIGHT

When the guards came past in slow time their lines as straight as the edge of a blade, Prince Philip smiled with appreciation. Several times he turned to Defence Minister Pearkes on the dias slightly to the rear, with pleased comment.

Col. J. C. Allan, commanding officer of the regiment, didn't see her, but the Queen gave him a long look of appreciation as if to say, "Well done."

UNFORGETTABLE

The soldiers put on an unforgettable show, from the ramrod-straight RSM J. G. Austin, who holds the Military Cross, to that splendid man, Drum Major W. E. Wyman, who threw his silver baton and caught it with authority.

When the six guards broke from slow time to quick time on the march, applause rolled down the hill, and when the band played "Tipperary" there was many a misty eye.

EXACT MOMENT

At the exact moment of the advance, an arrow of bombers from 407 and 408 Squadrons, RCAF Comox, flew past.

Then came the "E" for Elizabeth, spelled by CF-100 jets. The Queen looked up and smiled.

There was something medieval about the presentation ceremony itself, and a bond as old as history between the Queen and the Queen's men could be felt.

There were three subalterns at her feet, three chaplains standing by with bowed heads, the flags draped over a pyramid of drums and her guards around her in a hollow square.

"The battle honors which are emblazoned on your new colors commemorate this service and will remind you of the spirit of loyalty and devotion which have marked your famous regiments," said the Queen. "They will keep before you the memory and example of your gallant dead."

Infantry, and the King's Own Calgary Regiment.—(Colonist photo.)

No 'Incidents'—But There Was One

PPCLI press liaison officer, Lieut. Peter Stevens boasted yesterday, "There are no 'incidents' with the Patricia's."

But an "incident" did happen—a member of the color escort collapsed from the heat during the early minutes of the ceremony. He was carried into the shade, quickly recovered and resumed his place.

There were 3,700 officially invited guests at the color ceremony, but the unofficially invited guests—the general public—far outnumbered them.

"Guestimates" ranged up to 20,000.

Beacon Hill was half-covered with people 30 minutes before Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrived at the parade square. It was completely covered by 11 a.m.

Queen Elizabeth's unscheduled review of the guards at the color ceremony was made in a civilian Land Rover borrowed for the occasion.

The PPCLI was tipped off from Vancouver that Her Majesty might wish to review the troops, and it was suggested that an English-made Land Rover would be more suitable than the army's U.S.-made Jeeps.

Tuesday morning they borrowed the new vehicle from Jamieson Motors, built a platform in the rear with steps up to it, and installed a brass bar for the Queen to hold.

The 450 soldiers who represented the PPCLI in the color ceremony had had only three weeks "fairly intensive" training in the procedure.

Many of them spent part of their own time practising marching. The Queen followed the whole of the color ceremony from a copy of the printed program, referring to it constantly until the time came for her to take an active part.

Then she put the program down and carried out her duties confidently.

The naturalness of Queen Elizabeth delighted spectators. When her nose itched, she scratched it. A short time later she "primped," adjusting her hat.

More or less the forgotten man at the color ceremony was Prince Philip. More so than at any time on Vancouver Island, the husband became merely a loyal subject.

Silver and Gold, Dogwood Design

Handmade Desk Set B.C. Gift to Queen

British Columbia yesterday gave Queen Elizabeth a silver and gold desk set, the pieces richly engraved in a dogwood pattern.

At a provincial luncheon in the Empress Hotel, Premier W. A. C. Bennett also presented Prince Philip with a silver and gold cigar set box—with an engraving of the royal yacht Britannia—and two ash trays. Both gifts were made of B.C. metal by B.C. craftsmen.

The Queen told the premier, it was learned later, that her gift was "magnificent" and most practical. Prince Philip also was obviously pleased.

HUNDREDS OF GUESTS

The royal couple had luncheon with about 270 other guests, including the provincial cabinet, members of the legislature, representatives of the judiciary and the church, deputy ministers, and personal friends, and wives.

They ate B.C. smoked salmon, Vancouver Island guinea fowl, Duncan green beans, Ashcroft potatoes and Seaside Peninsula strawberries, and sipped two wines, Mont-rachet and Kope's Victoria port.

GAVE UP SALMON

Both Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip appeared to enjoy the meal, eating well. The alices of smoked salmon the royal couple ate were from a fish smoked Thursday for Capt. and Mrs. Maurice Bur-bidge of Sooke Road, which the Burbidges happily gave up when they learned it was needed for the Queen and Prince Philip.

For the luncheon, the Queen wore a spotted suntan organza full-skirted dress and a hat of white veiling. She chatted vivaciously during the first part of the meal with Premier Bennett while Prince Philip talked with Mrs. Bennett, then switched her attention to Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, while Prince Philip and the premier talked.

RETURN SOON

In presenting the gift to the Queen, Premier Bennett expressed hope that she would visit B.C. again soon, and in the meantime, he said, he hoped the gift would keep fresh her memories of this visit.

The premier also announced that Her Majesty had expressed her pleasure at B.C.'s gift of a bomb to its residents receiving social assistance, in total $1,500,000, to mark her visit.

A smile for all.

Britain's Golf Rulers Want 'Killer Instinct'

Britain's golf rulers, smarting under recent defeats by the United States, has called on the country's top amateurs to toughen up and develop the "killer instinct" of the Americans.

The call came in a memorandum from the Royal and Ancient Golf Club's selection committee. It follows the 9-3 victory of the U.S. over Britain in Walker Cup matches two months ago and the victory of Deane Beman, Silver Springs, Md., in the British Amateur.

The memorandum, circulated to all of Britain's top amateurs, urged them to make a point of starting well against an opponent and then adopting "the killer instinct" to finish the match quickly.

Nanaimo's Don Ashbee Suspended Whole Year

VANCOUVER — Fiery Don Ashbee, whose trigger temper has made him the talk of the Inter-City Lacrosse League for several seasons, was suspended for one year here last night as league commissioners cracked down on increasing violence in league games.

Ashbee, playing-coach of Nanaimo Labatts, was suspended indefinitely after last Saturday's game against New Westminster O'Keefe's in Nanaimo. Ashbee hit referee Ernie Smith after receiving a minor penalty for throwing the ball against the wall.

Spud Morelli, who was also suspended for his part in the fracas Saturday, received a two-game suspension. He will serve it in the next two games Nanaimo plays against O'Keefe's.

WHOLE YEAR

Ashbee's case was considered by commissioners last night and after deliberation he was given the one-year suspension. It goes into effect starting from last Saturday, and during the ensuing year he can neither play nor coach Labatts or any other team.

That leaves Labatts without their ace playmaker and source of inspiration. Ashbee was second only to Skip MacKay in team scoring when he was suspended, and was well up in the league scoring race.

Ashbee has always been a rugged competitor, and his escapades have made him one of the biggest draws in the league. For that reason alone, rival teams had hoped that he might get a lighter sentence.

ONE AHEAD

Labatts are currently one point ahead of Victoria Shamrocks in the battle for third place and the final playoff berth in the league. Shamrocks play at Nanaimo tonight.

While the Ashbee case was settled, there were indications last night that another Nanaimo mainstay, manager Rev. John Snowden, was in for a rough time from the commission for recent slams at the ruling body via radio and newspapers.

The league made no official statement regarding the Rev.

Snowden case last night. However, reports had it that Snowden will soon tender his resignation as manager of Labatts.

Rev. Snowden, angered after Ashbee's suspension last Saturday, had called the commission "incompetent" and leveled charges of similar seriousness at league referees. He made the first statements in a radio broadcast, then elaborated in an interview with The Daily Colonist. He later reiterated his charges in two more radio broadcasts.

There was no indication last night whether or not Rev. Snowden would be fined by the commission for his statements. Jack McKinnon, coach of Vancouver Carlings (then Pilseners), was charged $100 for making statements of a similar, if less incendiary, nature last season.

Sox Nip New York On Just Two Hits

Chicago White Sox retained their one-game lead in the tight American League race last night with a 2-0 victory over New York Yankees, but stop a moment and pity Yankee pitcher Ralph Terry.

Terry matched two-hitters with Early Wynn of the White Sox in one of the finest pitching duels seen in either league this season. But that isn't all. Terry had a no-hitter going until the ninth and weakened only slightly in taking his seventh defeat.

Rookie Jim McAnany broke up his no-hit bid with a single through the box to open the ninth. Wynn was safe on a fielder's choice, both runners moved up on a sacrifice and Nellie Fox was walked to load the bases. Jim Landis then singled in both runs with the second hit off Terry.

Meanwhile, Wynn was coasting along to his 12th victory. An infield hit by Terry in the sixth and Norm Siebern's ninth-inning single were the only hits he allowed.

Victory kept White Sox a game up on Cleveland Indians, who defeated Boston Red Sox, 8-7. Cleveland built itself an 8-1 lead with the help of Rocky Colavito's 29th homer, then held on for dear life. Boston scored four runs in the ninth, but couldn't get the one they needed to tie.

Things stayed as tight as ever at the top of the American League. Baltimore Orioles, turned back Detroit, 3-2, and Kansas City whipped Washington, 7-4.

Milt Pappas, the 20-year-old Baltimore wonder, came to Skinny Brown's aid with eighth-inning relief and saved the victory for the Orioles. It was the fifth straight loss for the Tigers. Brooks Robinson homered for the Orioles in the third and two more runs scored in the inning on Rocky Bridges' error with bases loaded.

Kansas City's victory snapped a three-game winning streak for the Senators. Ned Garver won his seventh, getting plenty of help from Dick Williams and Harry Chitt, who drove in two runs apiece in a seventh-inning rally.

San Francisco Giants opened up a two-game lead in the National League race, beating Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-1, behind the seven-hit pitching of Sam Jones. Jones struck out seven to raise his season total to 128, allowed only one runner to get as far as second base in the last seven innings, and set down the last eight men he faced.

Giants had a two-run lead after seven innings, and pounded relief ace Elroy Face for two more in the eighth. Harry Anderson's seventh-inning homer and George Anderson's outstanding catch in the ninth were the big plays for Philadelphia Phillies, who beat Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-2.

Jim Owens, who had lost five straight, got his first win since June 3 while Roger Craig suffered his first setback after winning four since being called up from the minors.

Milwaukee Braves continued to fade away. St. Louis Cardinals beat the Braves and Warren Spahn, 4-3, as Joe Cunningham doubled in the tying run and scored the winner on Gene Oliver's eighth-inning single.

Left-hander Art Ceccarelli pitched Chicago Cubs to their fourth straight victory with a 1-0 shutout over Cincinnati Redlegs in an afternoon game. He had a six-hitter and scored the winning run himself.

BILL WAKEHAM

Bill Wakeham On Junior Team

VANCOUVER (Special) — Bill Wakeham, 18-year-old Vancouver Island match play open champion from Victoria, was named to the B.C. junior golf team here last night along with three mainland youngsters.

Selection committee of the B.C. Golf Association picked Wakeham, Terry Campbell and Al Kennedy of Vancouver Marine Drive, and John Morgan of Fraserview Golf Club to represent the province in the Canadian match play championships and the inter-provincial championships at Montreal's Kanawaki Golf Club July 28-31.

At the same time, the committee announced selection of the provincial Willingdon Cup team, picking four mainland golfers. Competition will be held at Marine Drive in August.

Johnny Johnston and Bob Kidd, both of Marine Drive, were named to the team for the second straight year. Bert Ticehurst and Ron Willey of the Fraserview club, both on the team in 1957, round out this year's entry.

City Sprinter Lynn Eves Third in Games Trials

WINNIPEG — Lynn Eves of Victoria YMCA track team established himself as a serious contender for Canada's Pan-American Games team here yesterday as he placed third in the men's 100 metres in the first day of the team trials.

Eves finished behind Vancouver's sensational Harry Middleton in 10.4 seconds, and George Short of Saskatoon. Eves runs in the 200 metres today and a good showing would make him almost a cinch for a berth on the Canadian relay team.

Jerome and his 15-year-old sister, Valerie, almost stole the show at yesterday's competitions. Jerome's time for the 100 metres was only one-tenth of a second off the Canadian Open and native record held jointly by Percy Williams and Harold McPhee of Vancouver, and three-tenths of a second slower than the world record.

Valerie, who only started competing in meets last year, won the women's 100 metres in 12.2 seconds, won the broad jump with a leap of 18 feet 1 1/2 inches. She also placed third in the high jump.

Top 30 performers from the trials will represent Canada in the Pan-American Games starting Aug. 28 in Chicago. Victoria has one other hot contender for a berth on the team — backstroke champion Bob Wheaton.

Miss Jerome and policeman Stan Raikie of Toronto were the only double winners yesterday.

terday. Raikie won the men's shot put and hammer throw, then left by plane for Toronto to compete today in the Police Track and Field Meet.

There were no records broken yesterday although weather conditions were perfect. Some runners complained that the track was too soft in spots.

Best race of the day was the men's 10,000 metres, a stirring battle between Doug Kyle of Calgary and Gordon Dickson of Hamilton. The pair ran shoulder to shoulder for 23 of the 26 laps, then Kyle pulled away to win and draw a standing ovation from a crowd of 1,250.

A field of six started the race. Other entrant was Ron Davies, who withdrew after about six miles.

A field of six started the race. Other entrant was Ron Davies, who withdrew after about six miles.

the second straight year last night, covering the 23-mile jaunt from Victoria City Hall to the Sooke Flats in record time to retain possession of the Butler Brothers' Trophy.

Davies ran the marathon in two hours, 22 minutes, 26.5 seconds, setting the record in spite of intense heat throughout the race. Previous record, set by Davies last year, was 2:24.1.

Adrian Vail of Vancouver was second in 2:33.53. Ian Fraser, former Victoria High School cross-country star, came third in 3:19.25, followed by Gordie Eve of Sooke, 3:33.30, and George Whitman, also of Sooke, 3:20.

Saanich Widow Dies Waiting to See Queen

A Saanich widow suffered a heart attack and died at Beacon Hill Park yesterday, only minutes before the arrival of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip for the color presentation.

Mrs. Fanny Emma Scott,

3210 Wordsworth, was attended on the scene by St. John Ambulance representatives, and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where she was pronounced dead.

Although several others were overcome by the heat, both at the park and at Clover

Point, only two were taken to hospital and they responded quickly to treatment.

On the whole, St. John spokesmen said, casualties were few.

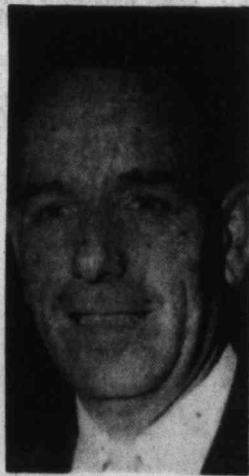

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Scott will be announced later by McCall's.

Roaring Fire Brings Closure Threat Near

Seen in Passing

Next Week May See Clampdown

A roaring fire on Mount Brenton near Chemainus, worst of 80 new blazes in the Vancouver forest district, brought threat of forest closure last night.

Forestry officials said the situation was not yet critical, but continued hot dry weather and more fires might force a clampdown on travel and activities in the district.

PERMITS CANCELLED

All permits for open rubbish fires were cancelled yesterday in the Langford fire protection district because of the danger of bush and grass fires.

More than 40 striking IWA members from Chemainus were rushed to the north-west slope of Mount Brenton last night to fight the raging fire there.

Within two hours after a small fire was reported in a slash area, 12 acres of "tinder dry" brush had been burned.

MEN RECRUITED

The men were recruited by forestry officials from Duncan. Late last night no explanation could be given into how it started.

The loggers and mill workers were taken into the fire area in loaded private cars.

With a bulldozer they were put to work trying to build a backfire to prevent the blaze from burning eastward on to MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd. land.

The fire, seven miles west of here, is believed to have started on government land. Harold Shaw, Cowichan Station, had the contract for cutting timber on it.

First report of the fire to the forestry station south of Duncan came from the lookout at Hill 60, near Mount Brenton.

Dwarfed but Unafraid

Big Shark Tours Harbor

A 23-foot basking shark took a tour of Esquimalt Harbor yesterday, the first time on record for one of the species.

The relatively harmless monster loomed around the seaward defence jetty at the Colwood side of the bay.

Provincial Museum curator Dr. Clifford Carl said he didn't "think the shark would ever attack, but they could damage small boats and they are a menace to fishermen's nets."

The shark had a long scar down its blue-grey back. Dr. Carl said it could have been caused by a bullet or harpoon.

'War of Attrition' Declares Morris

British Columbia's $1,000,000-a-day lumber strike of more than 26,000 coast woodworkers was termed a "war of attrition" yesterday by International Woodworkers of America chief Joe Morris.

"This is a war of attrition which can only be broken when one side breaks before the other," Mr. Morris said here yesterday.

"The pattern of this industry is that strikes last from six to eight weeks, and I suppose this one will be the same," he said.

By TERRY HAMMOND

Five simple words yesterday introduced me to a personality which I met for 30 seconds and which I will remember for the rest of my life.

"You were air force, right?" asked Prince Philip.

Those were the words and that was the personality.

It is a personality which on impact blows away the bias feeling with which a newspaperman arms himself as a veneer of protection against the panic of a royal tour.

It is also a personality which exhibits genuine sincerity and real interest.

Not a politician's sincerity or interest, but that of a man who in 30 seconds can give the impression that he really cares whether you are a tinker, a tailor or a candlestick maker—or even a newspaper reporter.

"What are you doing now?" asked the deeply-tanned, 38-year-old man whose acute powers of observation won him a successful naval career and pilot's wings—plus the doubtful distinction of spotting my RAF tie amid the color and confusion of the garden party at Government House.

"I'm in the newspaper business," I replied, expecting him to shudder visibly from thoughts of the incessant hounding which newsmen have given the royal couple in Canada.

"What do you do?" the Prince persisted, perhaps hoping I was in advertising sales or circulation.

"I'm a reporter," I answered. It was out at last.

Somewhat, knowing the pressure under which the Queen and Prince have been from the press, it sounded like a naughty word.

But Philip rolled with the punch.

"How did you ever manage to get through the crowd of photographers?" he cracked before moving off to likelier subjects.

Car Turns Up In California

While an insurance company was preparing to pay a claim this week to a Victoria man whose car was stolen here on May 23, he received a post card from a parking lot in Los Angeles, Calif., saying that the car had been there since May 26.

James McConachy, 906 Forshaw Road, said "someone must have assumed my identity in crossing the border and then abandoned the car at this parking lot."

"I'll leave it up to the insurance company to get my car back," he said. "But I'd hate to have to pay the month-and-a-half parking bill."

The 1955 sedan was stolen from the Empress Motors Ltd. car lot by a person who apparently climbed a nine-foot fence and forced open a chained gate by driving a repair truck from the compound through it.

The truck was left parked outside.

Stall Needs Vegetables

Victoria's surplus food stall needs fresh vegetables for today's stall, convener Mrs. E. K. Harper said yesterday.

"The biggest thing so far has been jam and fruit," she said. "But what we want mostly is the surplus from people's gardens."

Those wishing to contribute to the stall are asked to bring their donations this morning to the stall at 733-A Cormorant Street.

Unconscious Four Days, Little Boy Getting Better

Five-year-old David John Burdny, unconscious for nearly four days after being struck by a car while playing in his own front yard, is now in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said last night that the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Burdny of 1248 Reynolds Road, had regained consciousness and was able to talk.

Lightkeepers Enjoyed Best Seats in House

One of the best views of the spectacular RCN ship and fireworks display last night was that of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Brown.

They didn't have to cope with the crowded conditions along the waterfront, or join line-ups forming as early as 6 p.m. to get a good place.

They are the keepers of Trial Island lighthouse and watched the display from the light tower.

All-Sooke Day

Husky Loggers Compete Today

Husky loggers, using muscles and logging know-how to hold championship records or set new ones, will be the featured attraction of the All-Sooke Day program which starts at 12.30 p.m. today.

Afternoon events at the Sooke River Flats park will start with foot races and field sports before shifting to the brute-force logging contests.

A Vancouver Island Championship log pole race up Sooke River will be followed by a world championship log birling final.

Other Island championships will include a men's tree-chopping contest about 2.30, a women's nail-driving contest and a men's chopping contest.

Women will hold a tug-of-war, followed by an Island championship for men's log rolling, and then a men's tug-of-war. More Island championships will be at stake in men's log bucking and high rigger, which will be interspersed with power saw and novice high rigger contests.

Hundreds of pounds of barbecued salmon and beef will be served during the afternoon. Entertainment during the evening will include games and side-shows and square dancing in the community hall.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Scott of Prince Rupert, were among the many guests at the Government House garden party attended by Her Majesty and Prince Philip. They were guests in Vancouver of Dr. and Mrs. Homer Alexander and were accompanied by another Prince Rupert couple, Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Large.

Women's Institute Represented

Mrs. E. G. Woodward of Brentwood represented all the British Columbia Women's Institutes at yesterday's Government House garden party, attended by Her Majesty and Prince Philip.

Buffet Supper Party

Miss Arden Ford who is leaving shortly with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Ford, to make their home in Ottawa, was guest of honor at a buffet supper given recently by Miss Anne Love at her home on Majestic Drive. The guests, all school friends at St. Margaret's, included the Misses Leigh Forrest, Elizabeth Pember, Pamela Haynes, Carol Watson, Beatrice Flett, Sylvia Reinhard and Jean Bell.

Visitors from Calgary

Visitors from Calgary on the Island for a few days are Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McMeekin who will be guests Sunday at the Vancouver home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jackson.

Gracious Queen Meets Consul's Wife

Mrs. Gauttier F. Bisnar, wife of the only Philippine Consul in Canada, was thrilled to be presented to the Queen at the Royal garden party. Wearing a traditional Philippine dress called a derno, Mrs.

Bisnar had come from Vancouver with her husband for the occasion. She has been in Canada five years and this is her first visit to Victoria.

Happy and Relaxed

A happy and relaxed Queen, with Lieutenant-Governor Frank Mackenzie Ross, greeted one of the 4,000 British Columbians attending yesterday's gala Government House garden party. Her Majesty, looking truly regal and radiant was gownned for the afternoon's affair in a full-skirted creation of palest pink and lime, floral-splashed on ivory. Her feminine hat was of the palest tint of lime fashioned from crushed tulle petals.—(Colonist photos by Jim Ryan.)

At the Garden Party

Her Majesty All Radiance And Charm

The lovely Queen of England was all radiance at the Government House garden party yesterday.

In a frock of palest pink and lime delicately traced on ivory silk, a hat of crushed tulle petals barely tinted in green, she was the focus of every eye. Her diamond brooch was dazzling and four strands of pearls set off her ivory skin.

CHANCE TO CHOOSE

She seemed happy and relaxed and pleased to be meeting the people of British Columbia chosen for this occasion as representative of all walks of life. This way she could choose those she wished to speak to, instead of facing the endless lines of stiff presentations which are her lot on most occasions.

She chose to speak to Brownies, who were thrilled right through their little uniforms. Like the prince, she often picked out non-commissioned navy men, sergeants and sergeant-majors in the army. She talked to Air Cadets, Venture cadets and to a full-blooded Indian United Church Minister—Rev. Bill Robinson from Klemtu, who has a congregation of 90.

DELIGHTED

Roaming through the gardens it was easy to see the reaction to the Queen's warmth and easy smiles. Everyone was delighted. Those who were presented, or with whom she chose to chat, moved away to give the others a chance. Prince Philip saw steady lines of women lining his "route," but when he spoke to girls—they were usually under 10.

His banter left everyone laughing, and with a special remark to remember.

LEADS WAY

His Honor Lieutenant Governor Frank Ross led the way for the Queen's walk through the sunlit gardens, and Mrs. Ross walked with the prince.

Mrs. Ross was striking in a sheath dress with a wide collar figured in yellow and charcoal-brown tulips on beige. She wore a large picture hat with tulips poised on the brim. There was every kind of lovely frock. One man wore an open-necked shirt, but he said he had lost his tie at Clover Point.

Oaklands School Teacher Marries Vancouver Man

A honeymoon trip to Seaside, Oregon, followed the marriage of Phyllis Marlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Fisher, of Richmond, to Mr. John Thomas Yurichuk, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Yurichuk, of Vancouver. The bride is a teacher at Oaklands elementary school.

They were married in St. Stephen's United Church at Richmond by Rev. F. E. Runnals. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a bouffant floor-length gown of nylon organza appliqued with jewelled Guipure lace medallions. The fitted bodice had an empire waistline and featured lily-point sleeves. A jewelled crown held the fingertip veil, and she carried white stephanotis and red roses. Only jewelry worn was a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

Identical full-skirted dresses of turquoise polished cotton with matching cummerbunds and white wide-brimmed, crownless mohair picture hats were chosen for the five bridal attendants: Mrs. Clive Nylander, Mrs. Ron Hurst, Mrs. Kurlak and flower girl Leslie McEwan. They carried white carnations.

Don Sutter, Victoria, was best man. The bride's brother, George, and Paul Northey and Eric Johansson ushered.

Arthur Riley proposed the toast at a reception held in St. Stephen's Community Centre.

For a wedding trip the bride donned a white linen sheath dress with matching jacket trimmed with mauve lace. Her corsage was an orchid.

The couple will live in Victoria.

OLD TRADITION

The ravens that have been kept around the Tower of London for centuries are fed an official daily ration.

Shaw-Pethard

At a double-ring wedding in Oak Bay United Church recently, Miss Violet Verity Pethard, daughter of Major and Mrs. G. E. Pethard, married Mr. Ronald Alister Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shaw.

Rev. A. Calder officiated. The bride wore a floor-length gown in train with a wide portrait neckline etched with pearls and sequins.

Her veil of fine illusion with iridescent tracings, was held by a pearl encrusted coronet. She wore a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom, and carried red and white roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Turquoise peau-de-soie formed the gown worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Thate.

Mrs. David Farnden and Miss Suzanne Pethard, bridesmaids and bridesmaids, respectively, wore identical bandeaux of brown-eyed Susans made by Miss Sheila Rice, friend of the bride. They carried bouquets of salmon pink carnations.

Keith Robertson, Toronto, was best man and ushers were Robert Thate and Derek Parkes. Reception was held in Holyrood House, where the couple cut a three-tier cake.

Red roses and white candles decorated the bridal table. The groom's father proposed the bridal toast.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride donned a powder blue crinoline suit and white accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: What am I going to do with my wife? Innocently I fell in love with a sweet young girl and I can't get over it.

I've decided to stay with my wife and four kids because we used to get along fine before this love affair hit, and I think we can manage again.

But my wife is not at all understanding, Ann. She keeps asking me if I still love her. I tell her not to push me, that I've decided to stay with her and that should be enough.

I see the other girl occasionally and my wife knows it. She doesn't mention it often, but when she does I want to pack up and leave. I can't stand that hurt look in her eyes. Why can't she act like everything is normal and give me a chance to get hold of my emotions? After all, I'm trying my best. I'm not a machine.—ALL SHOOK UP.

Dear Shook: So you're not a machine and you're "trying your best." Well—I've got news—your wife's not a machine either and she's probably trying her best, too.

You expect a great deal of a woman when you ask her to act like everything is normal when she knows her husband is seeing a sweet young thing on the side. If you're serious about wanting to make a go of your marriage cut all ties with this girl and let your wife know you've finished with it.

This Sister Kick

Dear Ann: How does a girl get a certain guy for whom she is totally mad to stop treating her like a sister?

I've been dating this gorgeous hunk of man for almost a year, steadily but not steadily. His attitude toward me is so platonic I'm getting worried that this will be the longest kissless romance on record.

I started to go with him right after I'd broken off with his best friend. I made it plain that I'd had enough of love for a while and that we were going to be "great pals."

Now I'm going crazy trying to let him know I've had it on this sister kick. I'm sure he feels the same about me but he doesn't know how to get out of the well-established rut. A hint, please, Ann, before I flip. Another month of the goodnight handshake and I'll crack up.—GIGI.

Dear Gigi: Kid him "on the square." Cuddle up and tell him brothers and sisters are nice—if they're in the same family. This is the best way to let him know you're not looking for any more relatives. Announce you've recovered from the recent romance and want to give love another chance.

Dear Ann: An acquaintance and I got into a spirited discussion recently. Will you settle it? Do you feel that patients in a hospital appreciate visitors? I'm not referring to patients who are desperately ill, of course. There is $10 riding on this bet. Yes or no?—G AND L.

It's Not Union It's Co-existing

GREENHILL, England (CP)—For the first time since John Wesley led his followers out of the Church of England 214 years ago, a group of Anglicans and Methodists are planning to worship under the same roof.

"But this is no union," says Canon H. G. Collins, vicar of Herne, "it's a form of co-existence—Christian fellowship, you know."

Construction of the new church will begin in this small Kent village later this year and will be financed jointly by the two denominations. When it is ready, Anglicans and Methodists will take turns holding services, their children will attend a joint Sunday school and occasionally, says the vicar, there will be gatherings that will bring everyone together.

To avoid duplication, the Anglicans will start off by using the Methodist hymn book. "We don't see any necessity of buying two sets of books," says the vicar, "especially when the Methodists have a good one."

He says he hopes this first attempt to bridge the gulf between the churches will lead to further co-operation. "We really aren't too far apart anyway, you know; John Wesley was himself a very good Anglican clergyman."

Jamboree Fills City of Tents

MANILA (Reuters)—A city of tents and huts on the side of Mount Makiling, near here, sprang to life yesterday as 12,000 Boy Scouts from all over the world began their 10th world jamboree.

Some 3,000 visiting Scouts joined more than 8,000 Filipino Boy Scouts for a 10-day get-together aimed at "expanding the idea of universal peace and brotherhood" through Scouting.

STANLEY KNOWLES
... turned down twice

Feud Flares Up Again Between Labor, Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government and the 1,100,000-member Canadian Labor Congress became entangled Friday in a new and acrid fight with political overtones.

The congress, whose relations with the government have been delicate in recent months, charged the cabinet with breach of faith in making appointments to the unemployment insurance advisory committee.

Labor Minister Starr promptly snapped back that there was no breach of faith. In the Commons, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said earlier the government had promised the CLC would have consultation on appointments but this did not mean "determination."

The CLC opened new gunfire on the government after the cabinet had turned down the labor body's nomination of congress executive vice-president Stanley Knowles as one of the four members of the committee.

Mr. Knowles is an old political enemy of the government. After his turndown became known Friday, it also was learned that he was discarded by the government in July of last year when the congress put him up for a post on the insurance committee.

The main congress beef was the claim that the government did not honor an obligation to come back to the CLC and ask for new names if it did not like the ones submitted by the congress.

Canadian's U.K. Holdings Now Worth $75,000,000

LONDON (CP)—Publisher Roy Thomson said Friday night the figure of $75,000,000 he has used in referring to his big merger this week represents the market valuation of the properties involved. Under the deal, Thomson's Scottish television interests will be merged with the newspaper empire of British publisher Viscount Kemsley. This includes national and provincial papers and several printing plants.

"If somebody wants to come along now and buy our business outright, it would cost him $75,000,000," Thomson said.

"This represents the value that the stock market places on the business, on the basis of debentures and preferred and common stock."

TORONTO (CP)—Kenneth R. Thomson, president of Thomson Newspapers Limited, yesterday disclosed that his father, Roy, controls 80 per cent of the new overseas company merging Kemsley Newspapers, Scottish television and Scotsman publications.

Asked to place a value on the entire Thomson operation, in Canada and United States as well as in the United Kingdom, Kenneth Thomson said:

"That would take a weekend of figuring but offhand you could use $100,000,000 and not be far wrong."

Plain Food at Lake Pennask

'Humble' Royal Pair Made No Demands

VANCOUVER (CP)—The chef at the lodge on Lake Pennask where the Queen and Prince Philip holidayed for three days says the royal couple were "very humble and understanding" and wanted only plain food.

Bob Ross said in an interview Friday the Queen and prince, who broke their 44-day tour of Canada for the rest at the lake 50 miles from Kamloops this week, asked for nothing special and never voiced disapproval of anything.

"The Queen would sit out on the rocks and watch his Highness fishing or just read. On Monday they had a barbecue all by themselves. I fixed them up some bacon and hamburger patties and Philip cooked them himself."

He gave this typical royal menu:

Breakfast: Fresh fruit, western omelet with grilled bacon, jam, toast and coffee.
Luncheon: Chicken and potato salad, blueberry pie, tea.
Dinner: Lobster cocktail, roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, boiled potatoes, fresh peas, mashed turnips, mixed pickles, creamed mushrooms on toast, coffee.

Judge Defends Church 'Sentence':

I'd Do It for Any Boy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A judge's probation order that an 18-year-old youth go to mass every Sunday for two years was protested by the American Civil Liberties Union.

"I don't question the judge's motives," said Ernest Beig, the union's northern California director.

"But surely the state or government has no right to require support or adherence to any faith as a condition of staying out of jail."

In answer, Municipal Judge Ankred J. Eymann said:

"I think the Civil Liberties

Union is crazy about this. It's expressing an opinion without knowing the background of the case."

"I've done this several times in the past and I intend to continue in spite of what the civil liberties union may say."

When William J. Korpa, 18, pleaded guilty to a charge of beating up two guests at a beach party, Judge Eymann asked what church he attended and the boy replied Roman Catholic.

ASSURED JUDGE

The youth's mother, in court with him, assured the judge she would attend mass every Sunday with Korpa for two years. Another probation condition was no drinking.

"I'm not Catholic myself," Judge Eymann said. "But I would do this whether the boy was a Hindu, a Methodist, a Mormon, or what."

"My interest is to see whether I can help rehabilitate a boy without sending him to jail."

Toes Replace Lost Fingers

LONDON (CP)—A Montreal doctor has described a method of "replacing" lost fingers by grafting toes in their place.

Dr. Martin Estlin of Montreal's Victoria Hospital told the International Congress of Plastic Surgery that his methods have been tried seven different times. The result of some operations was described as good and some as average.

Miniature Warship Raising Funds

This 28-foot replica of the Constitution, the U.S. Navy's first warship, sailed into Vancouver after a four-day voyage from Baltimore, where the original vessel is berthed. Built exactly to scale, the craft carries a full complement of square-rigged sails and a battery of 10 one-inch cannons which fire shotgun shells. It's on a fund-raising coastal tour to help restore the original Constitution, built almost 200 years ago.

Americans Don't Mind

Nazi Ghosts Walk Plush Villas Of Obersalzberg Playground

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany (AP) — Cozily nestled here in the scenic grandeur of the Bavarian Alps is a vacation playground operated by the American Army.

But there are ghosts walking side by side with the thousands of visitors who come here each year.

These are the ghosts of Adolf Hitler and his band of followers who dreamed of a thousand-year Reich and murdered millions in a vain attempt to make their mad dream come true.

The visitors don't seem to mind the ghosts. They ski and swim and golf and walk the lonely lanes of Obersalzberg, the hill just outside town where Hitler and his men once revelled in swanky villas.

Not much is left of the Nazi villas that once dotted the sides of Obersalzberg here in the southeastern corner of Germany not far from the Italian and Austrian borders. The Americans bombed and dynamited them into rubble. Only foundation stones remain of Hitler's extravagant villa Berghof, where the Fuehrer, in September of 1938, met Neville Chamberlain, Edward Daladier and Benito Mussolini to draw up the Munich appeasement pact.

STILL STANDING

The former Hotel Plattershof, built to house Germans coming to pay their respects to Hitler, is the sole old building on Obersalzberg. But now it's the Hotel General Walker, one of eight U.S.-operated hotels here.

Also surviving is the Eagle's Nest, the elegant hideaway which literally perches atop the mile-high Mt. Killstein.

The Eagle's Nest was a gift to Hitler from one of his key aides, Martin Bormann, on the Fuehrer's 50th birthday, April 20, 1939. It took 3,000 people three years to build and it cost $7,500,000.

Hitler visited the Eagle's Nest only five times.

Now it is a tourist attraction. The thousands wander through its halls each year. They take a 4 1/4-mile bus ride up Killstein Mountain and then finish the trip in a 400-foot ride in a brass-lined elevator that grinds its way inside the mountain walls.

Still standing in Berchtesgaden itself is the building that Hitler used as his summer headquarters. Here, according to legend, the campaign against Poland was planned.

Mystery Tracks Prehistoric Vehicle Route?

VALLETA, Malta (Reuters) — One of the world's unsolved puzzles, ranking in interest with the enigmas of Stonehenge or the Easter Island statues, lies in the extraordinary prehistoric cart-tracks which criss-cross the rocky surface of Malta.

These tracks are plainly visible as deep parallel ruts. Their age has never been estimated with any accuracy.

What makes them even more puzzling is the fact that in many cases these tracks simply disappear over the edge of a cliff or run down a slope straight into the Mediterranean Sea.

Historians have discovered that the tracks appear to have lined various ancient ruins found in Malta. In addition, they are also seen on the small neighboring islands of Comino, Gozo and Filfofa.

This last tiny island is cut off from the others by three miles of sea, and there are no traces of man ever having made his home there. What is more, vegetation is so scarce that human beings could not survive on Filfofa.

Why, then, should the tracks have been made there? In Malta and Gozo, where the tracks are plainly visible running out to the sea, there is evidence that the two islands must once have been larger, and perhaps joined together, in prehistoric times.

Even today local legend has it that Malta and its three small dependent islands were all joined to the Italian mainland at one time.

The tracks were not caused by wheeled carts as known today, but by a kind of land-galley or sledge—the earliest kind of vehicle ever used. These land-galleys were often built like ships, and dragged to their destination.

This theory would account for the depth of the ruts, often 12 inches deep, which have been cut cleanly into the soft sandstone of which the islands are formed.

Historians believe that these land-galleys point to a people whose earliest idea of a vehicle was a ship, and hence they may well have been traders round the Mediterranean shores.

History is thus etched physically on the face of the islands.

Obituaries

Last Rites Today For City Policeman

Funeral services for a 29-year-old constable fatally injured when his motorcycle collided with a car Sunday will be held at 11:30 a.m. today with full Victoria police honors.

Const. Earle M. Doyle, 540 Manchester Road, died from extensive brain injuries 21 hours after his motorcycle collided with a car driven by Edward G. Whitehouse, 3025 Saanich. Witnesses said a newly issued protective helmet "flew off" his head in the collision.

He is survived by his widow Grace and three children, his mother in Saskatoon and a brother in Lethbridge.

Services will be from McCall Bros. funeral home with Rev. H. D. Johnstone officiating. Burial will be at Royal Oak.

Reds to Have Atomic Subs Before Long

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice-Admiral Hyman G. Rickover says the Russians will have atomic submarines in a relatively short time and may outstrip the United States in this field.

Rickover, the navy's nuclear propulsion chief, told a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee the Russians are trying out three nuclear reactors in their ice-breaker Lenin.

"If they can operate these reactors successfully on the Lenin, there is no reason why they cannot operate them successfully in a submarine," Rickover said in testimony.

Soviet Jet Pilot Sets New Altitude Record

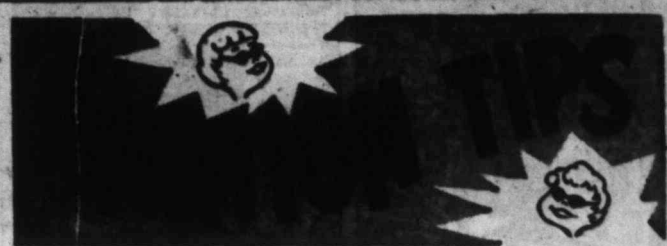

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet jet plane topped 94,000 feet this week to set a world altitude record, the Russians claim.

Current official world altitude record for jet aircraft is 91,243 feet set May 7, 1958 by Maj. Howard C. Johnson of the U.S. Air Force in an F-104A Starfighter.

Flower Girl

Special Warm Look

Greater Victoria officially welcomed Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip yesterday in a brief ceremony on Dallas below Beacon Hill, witnessed by about 1,000 persons including nearly 500 seated senior citizens.

Mayor Percy Scurrell read an address of welcome—which he then presented in illuminated, leather-bound form to the Queen—giving “testimony . . . of our deep affection, abiding devotion and unwavering loyalty.”

WARM GLANCE

Her Majesty looked out over the crowd from the red, white and blue dais while the mayor was reading, then stole a long, warm glance at 12-year-old Sandra Boam from Queen Alexandra Solarium, who was waiting to present a bouquet on behalf of the children of Greater Victoria and particularly of the Solarium.

After presenting the illuminated address, Mayor Scurrell told the royal visitors city council was delighted with the Queen's permission to award an annual $250 scholarship to a physical education student.

SWEET PEAS

Sandra Boam, in a green dress and wearing a white ribbon in her hair, received a special smile when she presented her bouquet of sweet peas to the Queen.

“The Queen said, ‘Thank you very much,’” Sandra recalled happily afterward.

Mayor Scurrell presented Greater Victoria municipal leaders and their wives: Reeve and Mrs. George Chatterton of Saanich, Reeve and Mrs. George Murdoch of Oak Bay; Reeve and Mrs. A. C. Wurtle of Esquimalt, Reeve and Mrs. H. R. Brown of Central Saanich, and Commission Chairman Dr. C. H. Hemmings and Mrs. Hemmings of Sidney.

Doukhobors Waiting For Answer

A four-woman Doukhobor delegation waited in Hilliers yesterday for an answer to a note asking for an audience with Queen Elizabeth.

Dressed in mourning, they presented themselves at Government House gates Thursday night seeking to ask the Queen for her intervention in obtaining a summer vacation for Doukhobor children in New Denver school.

RCMP guards refused them admittance, but said a note asking for an audience would be delivered to “the proper party.”

Joseph Podovnikov of Hilliers said the women were waiting at his home for an answer.

“We thought they would let us know here, but we haven't heard anything,” he said.

Four Big Pages Picture-Packed

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip saw much of Victoria yesterday and Victoria residents had many opportunities to see the royal couple. It all added up to a day the city will long remember. The events of the memorable day are recorded in pictures and stories on pages 6, 7, 8 and 13 of today's Colonist.

Estimated 100,000 Watched Fireworks

A spectacular fleet illumination and fireworks display which drew an estimated 100,000 spectators—nearly everybody in Greater Victoria—last night climaxed the two-day visit to Vancouver Island of the Queen and Prince Philip. The royal couple leaves by air this morning for the land of the midnight sun.

It seemed the whole city decided to seek the cool waterfront breezes after a scorching day which was highlighted by three major royal appearances. Police estimated it took at least an hour to unsmarl the traffic jams.

FROM TERRACE

The Queen and Prince Philip watched from the terrace of the new Government House overlooking the Strait of Juan de Fuca, where a dozen naval ships put on the 30-minute display.

The Queen is due to leave Patricia Bay airport at 10 a.m. today for Whitehorse, Y.T., with a brief stop at Terrace. It will be the first journey by a monarch into the Canadian Arctic, where Sam McGee was over-taken and Dan McGrew was shot over a lady known as Lou.

BEST SPOTS

Crowds started gathering about 6 p.m. at better vantage points along Victoria's waterfront. By the 10 p.m. starting time for the display, cars were lined up from the breakwater to Oak Bay Golf course—a distance of about four miles.

Spectators were treated to a brilliant display by ships of Pacific Command. Packed crowds along the waterfront gasped as the ships were outlined in hundreds of electric lights.

DARK SHAPES

After 15 minutes, at 10:15, the lights were switched out and the ships were dark shapes against the smooth, moonlit waters.

A minute later the scene erupted in a spectacular burst of noise and color as fireworks played over the ships for almost 15 minutes. Rockets soared high into the windless night sky, painting off-shore waters in lurid reds, yellows and greens.

TIMING OFF

Split-second fireworks display went awry when HMCS Assiniboine remained dark for a minute or so when the first rockets shot upward and never regained its timing.

Police said after the show was over that on roads leading to the waterfront area, traffic "was an awful mess."

NO ROOM

Better vantage points such as Clover Point and King George Terrace started to fill as early as 6 p.m. By 7:30 there wasn't a good spot to be had along Dallas Road.

Hundreds of others made their way to Gonzales Hill and Mount Tolmie to watch the display. A number of small boats were launched between 8 and 9 and the owners faced a long wait to get their boats back onto trailers.

STRENUOUS DAY

For the Queen and Prince Philip the display provided a relaxing interlude after the strenuous day's program which included visit to Veterans' Hospital, the PCLL color ceremony, state luncheon, a visit to Clover Point where 4,000 children were gathered, and a garden party at Government House.

The Queen attended a private dinner party at Government House in the evening, with 24 guests.

GIFTS, MEMORIES

She leaves British Columbia today with a slight case of sunburn, several gifts and memories of a sometimes- hectic, sometimes-relaxed visit.

The Queen may appear at the annual Klondike Night in Whitehorse and at Dawson City, next stop, she will likely visit the Nugget dance hall, last of the pleasure palaces where champagnes once sold at $30 a pint, and a cabin of Robert W. Service.

Where To Wave Goodbye

Now is the hour when we must say goodbye.

Last chance to see Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip on the Vancouver Island section of their Canadian tour comes this morning as they travel to Patricia Bay airport.

Here's the schedule:

9 a.m.—Leave Government House for airport via Rockland, Cook, Fort, Douglas, Patricia Bay Highway.

(Cars bearing the tour party will proceed slowly in Victoria City and at intersections of Douglas and Island Highway, MacKenzie, Quadra, and of Patricia Bay Highway and Saanich Road, Elk Lake, Keating Cross Road, Mount Newton Cross Road.)

9:50 a.m.—Arrival at airport.

10:00 a.m.—Royal plane departs.

Humane Slaughter Now Law

OTTAWA (UPI)—The government's controversial humane slaughter bill yesterday received final parliamentary approval when it was passed by the Senate.

The legislation sets out the basis of regulations governing the slaughter of food animals. It would apply to about 80 per cent of Canadian meat processing plants.

A Beloved Sovereign Walks Among Her People

Government House garden party crowd of 4,000 from all walks of life clustered around the Queen yesterday.

day, but occasion was not marred by shoving, pushing and jockeying for position which marked appearance of

Princess Margaret at similar function last year. Morning coats mingled with windbreakers.

This Garden Party Tops in Democracy

It Was a Smash Hit For High and Humble

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were guests of honor yesterday at British Columbia's most democratic Government House garden party in history.

It was a smash hit with a guest list that included office boys and millionaires, new recruits and grizzled generals, the young and the old, the high and the humble.

BEST ON RECORD

It was the pleasantest, sunniest and most relaxed party on the records of a setting famed for such gatherings and the Queen and Prince reacted to the atmosphere and the day with warmth and charm. Four thousand guests from every walk of life and every corner of the province responded happily to the graciousness of the royal couple who spent an hour and a half at the gathering on the freshly landscaped grounds of the new official residence.

EXTRA LONG

The stay was half an hour longer than originally scheduled—a token of the success of the meeting between the Queen and a representative group of British Columbians. Unlike last year's party for Princess Margaret, yesterday's gathering was unmarred by shoving or running by society crowds anxious to see the royal visitors at close range.

SOON SEPARATED

The Queen led the way down each terrace of the garden with Prince Philip following at first close behind her. But they soon became separated as they stopped and talked between them, to literally hundreds of guests.

Fishermen were there from Prince Rupert, loggers from Prince George, air cadets from Kamloops, general store proprietors from the Peace River country, labor leaders from Vancouver.

Guests wore grey toppers and morning coats, blazers and slacks, even zippered windbreakers and checked

Castro May Quit

President Of Cuba Resigns

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—President Manuel Urrutia resigned Friday night after Fidel Castro accused him of "near treason."

Almost immediately the council of ministers named a little-known lawyer, Osvaldo Dorticos, 40, to replace him. Castro himself, after resigning earlier in the day, said he was not decided whether to stay as prime minister. The rebel leader left the TV studio weeping after delivering a long denunciation of Urrutia.

There were indications the president and his family might go into exile. Castro told the TV audience that if Urrutia resigned he could go abroad if he wished or take refuge in a foreign embassy.

Canada Eyes Russian Fleet

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is watching developments "very closely" in the Bering Sea where a big Russian fishing fleet has been working, Fisheries Minister MacLean said Friday in the Commons. The fleet has gone as high as including tugs, transports and supply vessels, he said.

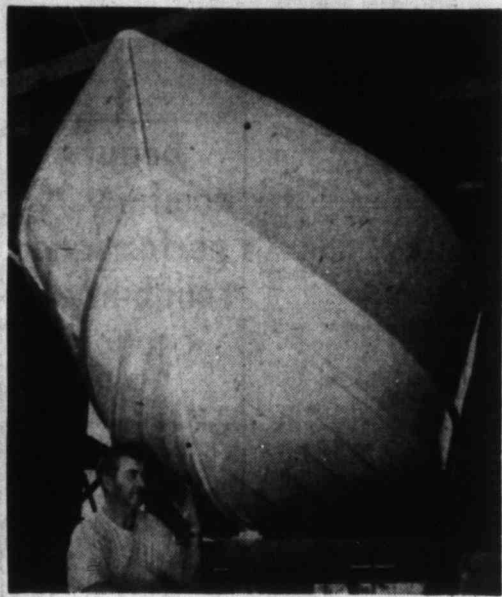

What It's Like to Meet Her

If you were one of the lucky few at Government House yesterday, this is the way Canada's Queen looked just before she took your hand, asked where you came from, what you did and what your name was, in a genuine attempt to find out what makes western Canada tick—what its people live for.—(Colonist photos by Jim Ryan.)

Will Air 'Float' Him to Victory?

Boatman Hopes to Take to 'Air'

Builder Aubrey Ash of Duncan hopes this special clinker style craft will "float" home an easy winner in Alaska-to-Seattle race. — (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

DUNCAN — This city's entry in the Alaska-Seattle boat race will "float on air," its designer and builder hopes.

Aubrey Ash, a commercial boat builder here who has "always been building boats," says his 20-foot craft is a "glorified clinker-style cabin cruiser."

He hopes to launch it this weekend.

The hull is built with regular-style planking that give it the look on "an upside down fir tree."

At 40 miles an hour the spaces between the tips of what would be branches on a tree will fill with air, he hopes.

"It will be able to ride out waves better and I'll get a little more out of the motors than an ordinary model," he said.

Mr. Ash will have with him Harold Ball, also of Duncan.

The race starts from Ketchikan July 30, and ends at Seattle four days later.

"It's going to be an easy race. At first I thought they'd just fire a gun and the first man there would win," he said.

"Now they've changed it so the race is done in four laps, the longest about 180 miles on the first day. It'll be perfectly safe."

He said the race is being sponsored by a group of American boat builders at Seattle to prove "boating is safe in Canadian waters to Alaska."

Next Week May See Clampdown

A roaring fire on Mount Brenton near Chemainus, worst of 80 new blazes in the Vancouver forest district, brought threat of forest closure last night.

Forestry officials said the situation was not yet critical, but continued hot dry weather and more fires might force a clampdown on travel and activities in the district.

PERMITS CANCELLED

All permits for open rubbish fires were cancelled yesterday in the Langford fire protection district because of the danger of bush and grass fires.

More than 40 striking IWA members from Chemainus were rushed to the north-west slope of Mount Brenton last night to fight the raging fire there.

Within two hours after a small fire was reported in a slash area, 12 acres of "linder dry" brush had been burned.

MEN RECRUITED

The men were recruited by forestry officials from Duncan. Late last night no explanation could be given into how it started.

The loggers and mill workers were taken into the fire area in loaded private cars.

With a bulldozer they were put to work trying to build a backfire to prevent the blaze from burning eastward on to MacMillan & Boodell Ltd. land.

GOVERNMENT LAND

The fire, seven miles west of here, is believed to have started on government land. Harold Shaw, Cowichan Station, had the contract for cutting timber on it.

First report of the fire to the forestry station south of Duncan came from the lookout at Hill 60, near Mount Brenton.

PORT ALBERNI — A small safe containing between $700 and $800 was stolen overnight Thursday from the Pacific Western Air Lines office here.

Thieves apparently gained entry by climbing onto a pile of lumber to break through a high window at the rear of the office.

Most of the money was in bills and coins. RCMP are investigating.

Dead 'Poor Swimmer' Caught in Undertow

DUNCAN — A coroner's jury was sworn in and then adjourned last night at the inquest into the death of Albert Kidd, 50, a businessman who drowned Thursday at Tent Island, five miles west of Chemainus.

They viewed the body and released it for burial here from Hirst funeral home.

The Duncan man apparently drowned when he was caught in an undertow near a sandbar from which he had been swimming.

Friends described the honorary Canadian Legion member as a "poor swimmer."

He lived here 26 years, and had been in Canada, 45. He was born in Lancashire, Eng.

Surviving are his wife, Glendyne; a son, Kenneth; two brothers, Robert in Duncan and Fred in Nanaimo; two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Whitta and Mrs. Charles Rowa, both of Nanaimo.

Rev. W. O. McKee will officiate at the service starting at 2 p.m. Burial will be in Mountain View cemetery, Somenos.

PARKSVILLE — More than 1,000 former residents of the prairie provinces got together at Parksville recently for the annual Prairie Picnic, organized by George W. Begley of Nanaimo.

Entertainment for all ages included continuous movies, music, horseshoe pitching, children's races, a ball game and an old time fiddler's contest.

DUNCAN — City Council and directors of Pioneer Park have approved a joint agreement on the administration of the 14-acre site that is being developed by service clubs and sports groups.

The city will pay the taxes and be responsible for maintenance of the grounds.

Park directors will have to relinquish sole jurisdiction of the grounds and have to get council approval on some uses of the park.

DUNCAN — Cowichan Exhibition's planning board members approved a tender yesterday for the construction of four barns that will mean the completion of the first phase of work in building a permanent site at Pioneer Park here.

Board member Will Dobson said the contract was let to Brownsey and Sons, Duncan, for $8,667.

It was the lowest of five bids.

Most of the money to construct the buildings was raised by a public canvas.

NANAIMO — One additional round trip sailing each Friday between here and Vancouver was announced Friday by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The sailing will depart from here at 9:30 p.m., arriving at Vancouver at 11:45 p.m. and depart from Vancouver at midnight, arriving here at 2:15 a.m.

PORT ALBERNI — Barry Dahlman, 11, is in satisfactory condition in West Coast General Hospital being treated for cuts and bruises resulting from a fall from his bicycle, Thursday, in the 200-block Eighth Avenue.

PARKSVILLE — The annual picnic for members and families of Mt. Arrowsmith branch 49, Canadian Legion, will be held at Quail-Park Estates, Sunday, starting at 3 p.m.

The site of the picnic is near French Creek about three miles north of Parksville.

DUNCAN — The 178-acre Sol Sante Nudist Club is holding open house today at their camp on the Cameron-Taggart Road near Shawnigan Lake.

Members and guests must wear clothes. Children have to be accompanied by adults.

PORT ALBERNI — Matilda Rush, a two-year-old Indian girl, was drowned off a fish cannery wharf at Kildonan, near the entrance to the Alberni Canal.

The girl was found in the water by her father, Warren Rush, who applied artificial respiration. A B.C. Airlines plane from Port Alberni picked up the girl and flew her to hospital, but she was dead on arrival.

DUNCAN — Dr. C. H. Beever-Potts, head physician at King's Daughters' Hospital, left Thursday to take part in the joint meeting of the British and Canadian Medical Associations.

He and his wife will attend sessions at the meeting in Edinburgh, Scotland, and tour England and Wales before returning in August.

All-Sooke Day

Husky Loggers Compete Today

Husky loggers, using muscles and logging knowledge to hold championship records or set new ones, will be the featured attraction of the All-Sooke Day program which starts at 12:30 p.m. today.

Afternoon events at the Sooke River Flats park will start with foot races and field sports before shifting to the brute-force logging contests.

Events will follow in sequence, but definite times have not been set for any of them, in keeping with a policy described by a Sooke resident as "nobody out here cares whether we're an hour ahead or an hour behind schedule."

A Vancouver Island Championship log, pole race up Sooke River will be followed by a world championship log birling final.

Other Island championships will include a men's tree-chopping contest about 2:30, a women's nail-driving contest and a men's chopping contest.

Women will hold a tug-of-war, followed by an Island championship for men's log rolling, and then a men's tug-of-war. More Island championships will be at stake in men's log bucking and high rigger, which will be interspersed with power saw and novice high rigger contests.

Hundreds of pounds of barbecued salmon and beef will be served during the afternoon. Entertainment during the evening will include games and side-shows and square dancing in the community hall.

Stall Needs Vegetables

Victoria's surplus food stall needs fresh vegetables for today's stall, convector Mrs. E. E. Harper said yesterday.

"The biggest thing so far has been jam and fruit," she said. "But what we want mostly is the surplus from people's gardens."

Those wishing to contribute to the stall are asked to bring their donations this morning to the stall at 723-A Cormorant Street.

Home Burns To Ground On Gabriola

NANAIMO — The Gabriola Island home of Gordon Medforth burned to the ground yesterday, just one day after his family had moved into it.

No one was injured. A six-year-old son ran half a mile for help, but the structure became engulfed in flames within 10 minutes' time and had already burned to the ground when neighbors arrived.

Only a few personal possessions were saved. The destitute family moved in with friends on the same island.

NAVY'S SPECTACULAR SHOW CLIMAXES QUEEN'S VISIT

'Whole City' At Waterfront

A spectacular fleet illumination and fireworks display which drew an estimated 100,000 spectators—nearly everybody in Greater Victoria—last night climaxed the two-day visit to Vancouver Island of the Queen and Prince Philip. The royal couple leaves by air this morning for the land of the midnight sun.

It seemed the whole city decided to seek the cool waterfront breezes after a scorching day which was highlighted by three major royal appearances. Police estimated it took at least an hour to unsmarl the traffic jams.

The Queen and Prince Philip watched from the terrace of the new Government House overlooking the Strait of Juan de Fuca, where a dozen naval ships put on the 30-minute display.

The Queen is due to leave Patricia Bay airport at 10 a.m. today for Whitehorse, Y.T., with a brief stop at Terrace. It will be the first journey by a monarch into the Canadian Arctic, where Sam McGee was over-toasted and Dan McGrew was shot over a lady known as Lou.

BEST SPOTS

Crowds started gathering about 6 p.m. at better vantage points along Victoria's waterfront. By the 10 p.m. starting time for the display, cars were lined up from the breakwater to Oak Bay golf course—a distance of about four miles.

Spectators were treated to a brilliant display by ships of Pacific Command. Packed crowds along the waterfront gasped as the ships were outlined in hundreds of electric lights.

DARK SHAPES

After 15 minutes, at 10:15, the lights were switched out and the ships were dark shapes against the smooth, moonlit waters.

A minute later the scene erupted in a spectacular burst of noise and color as fireworks played over the ships for almost 15 minutes. Rockets soared high into the windless night sky, painting off-shore waters in lurid reds, yellows and greens.

TIMING OFF

Split-second fireworks display went awry when HMCS Assiniboine remained dark for a minute or so when the first rockets shot upward and never regained its timing.

Police said after the show was over that on roads leading to the waterfront area, traffic "was an awful mess."

NO ROOM

Better vantage points such as Clover Point and King George Terrace started to fill as early as 6 p.m. By 7:30 there wasn't a good spot to be had along Dallas Road.

Hundreds of others made their way to Gonzales Hill and Mount Tolmie to watch the display. A number of small boats were launched between 8 and 9 and the owners faced a long wait to get their boats back onto trailers.

STRENUOUS DAY

For the Queen and Prince Philip the display provided a relaxing interlude after the strenuous day's program which included visit to Veterans' Hospital, the PPCLI color ceremony, state luncheon, a visit to Clover Point where 4,000 children were gathered, and a garden party at Government House.

The Queen attended a private dinner party at Government House in the evening, with 24 guests.

GIFTS, MEMORIES

She leaves British Columbia today with a slight case of sunburn, several gifts and memories of a sometimes-hectic, sometimes-relaxed visit.

The Queen may appear at the annual Klondike Night in Whitehorse and at Dawson City, next stop, she will likely visit the Nugget dance hall, last of the pleasure palaces where champagnes once sold at $30 a pint, and a cabin of Robert W. Service.

Where To Wave Goodbye

Now is the hour when we must say goodbye.

Last chance to see Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip on the Vancouver Island section of their Canadian tour comes this morning as they travel to Patricia Bay airport.

Here's the schedule:

9 a.m.—Leave Government House for airport via Rockland, Cook, Fort, Douglas, Patricia Bay Highway.

(Cars bearing the tour party will proceed slowly in Victoria City and at intersections of Douglas and Island Highway, MacKenzie, Quadra, and of Patricia Bay Highway, and Saanich Road, Elk Lake, Keating Cross Road, Mount Newton Cross Road.)

9:50 a.m.—Arrival at airport.

10:00 a.m.—Royal plane departs.

Humane Slaughter Now Law

OTTAWA (UPI)—The government's controversial humane slaughter bill yesterday received final parliamentary approval when it was passed by the Senate.

The legislation sets out the basis of regulations governing the slaughter of food color animals. It would apply to about 80 per cent of Canadian meat processing plants.

A Beloved Sovereign Walks Among Her People

Government House garden party crowd of 4,000 from all walks of life clustered around the Queen yesterday,

Princess Margaret at similar function last year. Morning coats mingled with windbreakers.

President Of Cuba Resigns

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—President Manuel Urrutia resigned Friday night after Fidel Castro accused him of "near treason."

Almost immediately the council of ministers named a little-known lawyer, Osvaldo Dorticos, 40, to replace him. Castro himself, after resigning earlier in the day, said he was not decided whether to stay as prime minister. The rebel leader left the TV studio weeping after delivering a long denunciation of Urrutia.

There were indications the president and his family might go into exile. Castro told the TV audience that if Urrutia resigned he could go abroad if he wished or take refuge in a foreign embassy.

Canada Eyes Russian Fleet

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is watching developments "very closely" in the Bering Sea where a big Russian fishing fleet has been working. Fisheries Minister MacLean said Friday in the Commons.

The fleet has gone as high as including tugs, transports and supply vessels, he said.

It Was a Smash Hit For High and Humble

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip were guests of honor yesterday at British Columbia's most democratic Government House garden party in history.

It was a smash hit with a guest list that included office boys and millionaires, new recruits and grizzled generals, the young and the old, the high and the humble.

BEST ON RECORD

It was the pleasantest, sunniest and most relaxed party on the records of a setting famed for such gatherings and the Queen and Prince reacted to the atmosphere and the day with warmth and charm.

Four thousand guests from every walk of life and every corner of the province responded happily to the graciousness of the royal couple who spent an hour and a half at the gathering on the freshly landscaped grounds of the new official residence.

The stay was half an hour longer than originally scheduled—a token of the success of the meeting between the Queen and a representative group of British Columbians.

SOON SEPARATED

The Queen led the way down each terrace of the garden with Prince Philip following at first close behind her. But they soon became separated as they stopped and talked, between them, to literally hundreds of guests.

Fishermen were there from Prince Rupert, loggers from Prince George, air cadets from Kamloops, general store proprietors from the Peace River country, labor leaders from Vancouver.

Guests wore grey toppers and morning coats, blazers and slacks, even zippered windbreakers and checked

What It's Like to Meet Her

If you were one of the lucky few at Government House yesterday, this is the way Canada's Queen looked just before she took your hand, asked where you came from, what you did and what your name was, in a genuine attempt to find out what makes western Canada tick—what its people live for.—(Colonist photos by Jim Ryan.)
